POLAR DIRIGIBLE ITALIA LOST

Buffeted by Storms With Crew Frozen, Exhausted

83 and a Half Hours in the Air, Radio Silent 18 Hours, All Resources of Northland to Go in Aid

(Copyright, 1928, by United Press)

Buffeted by storms, her fabric ripped, one of her motors disabled, her fuel supply probably exhausted, her crew half frozen and exhausted after nearly 48 hours at emergency posts and 83½ hours in the air, the polar dirigible Italia at 11 A. M., E. S. T. today had been silent for 18 hours.

Sixty-two hours before, she had nosed proudly over the north pole—the third flying craft to accomplish the feat—and had dropped over her side various objects to signify man's supremacy over the inimical Arctic elements.

At 11 A. M., the Italia was 43½ hours overdue at Spitzbergen, in desperate straits.

The last message from Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, sent at 8:30 A. M., E. S. T., started off: "No news from the Italia."

As the ship in the air or her crew on the frozen Arctic waste fought for life, all resources of the European northland were being mobilized to go to their aid.

The Norwegian government summoned an urgent meeting of polar experts in response to an appeal by the Italian ambassador at Oslo. Raold Amundsen, ace of the Arctic, discoverer of the south pole, and companion of the Italia's commander on a previous north pole flight, was expected to take charge of a relief expedition.

The supply ship Citta Di Milano, the Italia's base ship at Kings Bay, Spitzbergen, had steam up and was preparing to leave momentarily to buck the ice in an effort to reach the northern part of the island—where the Italia last was reported—by a circuitous route around the eastern coast, where the ice was less thickly jammed than on the western side.

While these two expeditions were preparing to go to the storm-stricken dirigible's aid, sealing ships and trappers in the little islands north of Spitzbergen, up past the northernmost point of civilization, were searching for the Italia on land and listening for the sound of her engines in the air.

A radio message from one of the sealing ships gave but little hope that their help would be of much avail.

The fog was so thick, it was said, that the Italia could not be seen a short distance away, and an icy gale was howling so strongly, as if in derisive triumph, that the whir of her motors could not be heard if she was at any appreciable altitude in the air.

The Italia's last message sent from the Moffen Islands north of Spitzbergen, said that at 4 P. M., E. S. T. yesterday, 62½ hours out, she had been forced to turn back northward and try to ride the storm she no longer could fight.

At her start the Italia had carried at most 80 hours' fuel supply. She had been gone, at 11 A. M., E. S. T., 82½ hours. Her fuel might have been used up before if she had tried too long to ram a way through the wall-like wind. If her fuel had been conserved, she might have had some left, and the disabling of one engine might have accomplished this.

It was feared the Italia's long silence meant, at best, that her radio had been put out of operation by ice, that even at the start began forming on her.

If the Italia's fuel were exhausted she would be able, probably, to drift in the air for days—under the best conditions — a big, stringless kite blown buoyantly by errant winds.

It was hoped that the Italia might be drifting, or proceeding under her own power, toward the Siberian coast east of Spitzbergen. There is a radio station on Nova Zembla, north of Siberia.

If the Italia landed safely even in a completely barren part of the Arctic, on land or ice, her radio could be patched up and she could communicate with the world. There was assurance that all agencies, and all men, within reach of the Arctic area were ready to go to her rescue.

HOPEFUL AT KINGS BAY

Kings Bay, May 26. — Improved weather in the southern regions of the Arctic sea today brought hope that the polar dirigible Italia might fight its way out of the stormy northern skies, although no direct word had been heard from the craft here for almost 24 hours.

At 11 A. M. today—7 A. M. eastern standard time—the dirigible had been in the air about 78½ hours and was almost 39 hours overdue at its hangar here.

The supply ship, Citta Di Milano, was fueling preparatory to leaving early this afternoon for north Spitzbergen on a relief expedition in search of the Italia. One hundred and fifty tons of coal were taken aboard.

A long morning passed, and at 9:30 A. M. E. S. T., there had been no word from the Italia since 3 P. M. Friday—18½ hours—when Gen. Nobile sent a radio from the vicinity of the Moffen Islands, just north of Spitzbergen, and only 30 miles from Graahuk, on the north coast of Spitzbergen.

(A Norwegian navy map shows Moffen Island to be at latitude 80 degrees north, longitude 10 degrees 15 minues east—about 100 miles northeast of King Bay. Graahuk is on the main Spitzbergen island about fifteen miles south of Moffen Islands.)

At 9:30 A. M., E. S. T., a radio message was received here from a seal hunting ship in the Graahuk vicinity. It said:

"We have asked various trappers wintering at Roede Bay and at Hinlopen-Straetet whether they heard or saw the Italia over the Moffen islands. But they had discerned no trace—either because fog banks concealed the Italia or because a raging storm drowned the sound of her motors."

PILOT AND TWO PASSENGERS KILLED AS PLANE CRASHES

Berlin, May 26.—(U.P.)—The pilot and two passengers were killed when a Junkers airplane fell and burst into flames today between Dortmund and Frankfurt. Of the two other passengers in the plane one was injured and the other escaped unhurt.

MUMBLING INCOHERENTLY, JNO. WADE LIES IN HOSPITAL

RESCUED FROM MATHER MINE, HALF CRAZED AFTER EXPLOSION

Mather, Pa., May 26. — (UP) — Mumbling incoherently, John Wade, negro worker in the Mather mine, lay in a hospital here today after being rescued from the mine shaft, where he spent 147 hours after an explosion.

Wade was found last night, two and a half miles in the interior of the shaft. He was half crazed when rescue workers came upon him. Apparently he had wandered from section to section of the mine where 200 workers were killed, seeking an outlet from the gas fumed interior.

Rescue workers continued digging through the shattered mine shaft today, seeking the additional bodies.

AIR RACE FOR CROOKSTON STARTS FROM ST. PAUL

PLANES WILL TAKE PART IN A 2-DAY AIR DERBY SATURDAY AND SUNDAY

PAMPHLETS DISTRIBUTED URGING ESTABLISHMENT OF AIRPORTS ALONG ROUTE

St. Paul, May 26.—(UP)—A fleet of more than 15 airplanes took off from the municipal airport here today in an air race for Crookston, Minn., where the planes will take part in a two-day air derby today and Sunday.

Two five-minute stops, at Wold Chamberlin Field, Minneapolis, and at Little Falls, Minn., were made by the planes which bombarded towns and villages enroute with pamphlets urging establishment of airports at all towns along the route.

Following the Crookston derby the planes will leave on an international good will tour to Winnipeg, Man. The fliers will remain there Monday and will be tendered a reception by officials of the city, according to announcement here.

Charles W. (Speed) Holman, holder of the world's loop-the-loop record, will supervise the race and tour which is sponsored by the American Legion and other organizations of Crookston and the Twin Cities.

Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg has notified Winnipeg officials of the tour which has the sanction of the United States war department. Princess Pat's military band will be a feature of the greeting to be given the fliers there, Winnipeg officials have announced.

SWOLLEN STREAMS THREATEN 2 SECTIONS OF WYOMING

Rock Springs, Wyo., May 26.—(UP)—Swollen streams threatened two sections of Wyoming today.

The Gros Venture valley region is in danger of a repetition of a flood that swept the section two years ago, taking a toll of several lives.

The Gros Venture river is at flood crest. The Sweetwater river also is reported over its banks. Flood warnings have been broadcast.

REP. THOS. S. BUTLER LIES NEAR DEATH AT WASHINGTON

Washington, May 26. — (UP) — Rep. Thomas S. Butler of Pennsylvania, chairman of the house naval committee, lay near death today in his apartment at the Burlington hotel.

He had been unconscious more than 24 hours, because of a relapse resulting from a heart attack at the capitol a month ago. Butler is 72.

SEEKS TO REIMBURSE 4 SOUTHERN STATES

Washington, May 26.—(UP)—A bill to authorize appropriation of $3,654,000 to reimburse the states of Missouri, Mississippi, Louisiana and Arkansas for reconstruction of federal roads and bridges damaged by floods was introduced today by Sen. Robinson, democrat, Arkansas.

PRESS CLUB MEN RESENT MUSSOLINI GAINING ENTRANCE

Washington, May 26. — (U.P.) — Twenty-five members of the National Press club have protested again the recent election of Premier Mussolini of Italy as a non-resident member of the club. The protest said Mussolini had been guilty of "violent treatment of press men and press properties and of censorship of the work of foreign correspondents in Italy."

GERMANY WINS HOCKEY GAME FROM BELGIANS

Olympic Stadium, Amsterdam, May 26. (U.P.) In the first appearance of a German team in an Olympic stadium since 1912, Germany defeated Belgium 3 to 0 at field hockey today, and thus gained third place in the hockey tournament.

HOUSE APPROVES REPORT ON NEW POSTAL BILL

LATTER MAKES REDUCTION OF $16,000,000 IN PRESENT RATES

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE EXPECTED TO SIGN THE MEASURE SHORTLY

Washington, May 26. — (UP) — The house today approved the conference report on the new postal bill making a reduction of $16,000,000 in present rates. The bill now goes to the White House, having been approved earlier today by the senate.

Mr. Coolidge is expected to sign the measure which provides:

A 12 per cent flat corporation tax.

Repeal of the three per cent automobile tax.

Increase of exemptions on admissions from 75 cents to $3.00.

Exemption of tax on club dues up to $25.

Increase from $20,000 to $30,000 on income recognized as earned income, on a 25 per cent credit is allowed.

Repeal of the cereal beverage tax and reduction of the wine tax. Repeal of the tax on foreign built yachts.

Reduction of the drug narcotic tax from $6 to $3.

Before the report was adopted, Rep. Ramseyer, republican, Iowa, said that on the basis of appropriations figures he received today from Director of the Budget Lord, there would be a treasury deficit of $80,000,000 next year, exclusive of Boulder Dam, Muscle Shoals and the corn borer bill.

RESERVE PILOT OF N. Y.-ATLANTA AIR ROUTE KILLED

Richmond, Va., May 26—(UP)—James R. Reid, reserve pilot of the New York-Atlanta air mail route, was killed today when his plane was wrecked in a forced landing on Tappahannock road, near here.

Ambassador Houghton Leaves England for U. S.

London, May 26—(UP)—United States Ambassador Alanson B. Houghton sailed for New York today aboard the S. S. Berengaria. The ambassador said his trip was purely private although he probably will attend the republican national convention in Kansas City.

WYMORE, NEB., BANK IS ROBBED

Wymore, Neb., May 26.—(UP)—The Farmers and Merchants Bank was robbed o fan undetermined sum here today by five armed bandits.

It was believed the men were the same bandits that held up the First National Bank at Lamar, Colo., last Wednesday and since have been the object of a widespread search.

SEAPLANE X-PN-12 IN NEW RECORD ENDURANCE FLIGHT

Philadelphia, May 26.—(UP)—The seaplane X-PN-12 established a new record for an endurance flight with a pay-load—2,240 pounds—today when it landed at 4:47 a. m. after being in the air 17 hours and 55 minutes.

The plane was piloted by Lieutenant Zeus Soucek and Lieutenant Lisle J. Maxson with G. C. Poley as machinist.

The old record was broken at 10:16 p. m. last night when the ship had been in the air 10 hours and 23 minutes.

AIRPLANES AND POSSES JOIN IN WIDE MAN-HUNT

SEARCH FOR 4 BANDITS WHO KILLED 2 BANK OFFICIALS AT LAMAR, COLO.

400 MEN IN CARS AND AIRPLANES BELIEVED CLOSING IN ON BANDITS

Denver, Colo., May 26.—(UP) — Airplanes, machine-gun posses and hundreds of heavily-armed volunteers were joined today in one of the most extensive man-hunts in the history of the west.

The search for four bandits who killed two bank officials Wednesday in a $44,000 holdup at Lamar, Colo., spread to five states.

While 400 men in motor cars, assisted by observers in airplanes, were reported to be closing in on the robbers near Oakley, Kan., organized pursuits were in progress also in Oklahoma, Colorado, Nebraska and New Mexico.

The bandits, who killed A. N. Parrish, president of the First National Bank of Lamar, and his son, John, cashier of the bank, during the robbery, were believed to have killed two other men in their flight.

One is Dr. W. W. Wineinger of Dighton, Kan., whose body was found 25 miles south of Oakley, Kan., yesterday with shotgun wounds in the head. The other is E. A. Kessinger, cashier, whom the bandits abducted when they robbed the bank. No word of him has been received since the holdup, and he was believed to have been slain.

Kansas authorities believed they had forced the bandits into hiding in the brakes along the Smoky Hill river somewhere between Oakley and Scott City. The pursuers were prepared for a battle, since the bandits were reported to be armed with a machine gun.

All bridges from Dodge City to the Colorado state line were guarded closely.

Authorities of Oakley and Scott City, Kansas, were investigating the possibility that Dr. W. W. Wineinger, physician, believed to have been kidnaped by the bandits with the idea that he would treat a wounded member of the gang, may have been tortured before being put to death.

Dr. Wineinger's body was found between the two cities. It bore evidences of a severe beating and it was thought that, discovering the men with whom he was dealing, the physician may have refused to help them. A note left in his car near his body was found referred to "doctors and murderers" and it was held that the wounded bandit may have died and the others taken vengeance on the physician.

Dr. Wineinger's bandages, medicine case and coat were found at intervals along a highway leading toward Colby, Kansas, and it was thought the bandits may have fled in that direction.

TAX REDUCTION BILL SENT TO PRES. COOLIDGE

Washington, May 26. — (UP) — The $223,495,000 tax reduction bill was sent to President Coolidge today.

Congressional action was completed by house adoption of the conference report approved yesterday by the senate. The income tax publicity section of the bill was removed by the upper house in adopting the report yesterday.

OWL EYED BOY OF ITALY MAY GAIN U. S. ENTRY

New York, May 26.—(U.P.)—Deportation of Giovanni Galvanti, the owl eyed boy, and his mother has been stayed. The curiously afflicted Italian may yet see the new wonders of the new world although he can see only at night.

Issuance of a writ of habeas corpus by Judge John C. Knox has automatically halted the deportation.

The two were ordered deported when it was learned Giovanni suffered from a peculiar affliction that forced him to close his eyes in the day time. He says he can see perfectly at night.

SENATE UPHOLDS VETO McNARY-HAUGEN BILL

FLOYD COLLINS' TRAGIC DEATH MAY BE DUPLICATED

Harlan, Ky., May 26. (U.P.) The tragic death of Floyd Collins may be experienced by another Kentuckian it was feared here today as search continued in the Black Mountain corporation coal mine for Fred Romines, 45 years old.

Romines was last seen running from the scene of an explosion that killed seven miners Tuesday night. Preliminary search of the mine failed to reveal any trace of him. Miners believe he is alive and entombed somewhere in the inner mine workings.

FARMERS DEMAND ECONOMIC EQUALITY FOR AGRICULTURE

FARMERS TO MARCH TO REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION, KANSAS CITY

St. Paul, May 26.—(UP)—Thousands of Minnesota farmers and agricultural leaders would join in the proposed "march of farmers" to the republican national convention at Kansas City to demand economic quality for agriculture, according to an opinion voiced here by J. F. Reed, president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation.

"Despite the fact that the republican convention conflicts with the busy farm season a great many of them would enter the move. They regard a pledge on farm relief as more important than the tasks at hand," he asserted.

HERMAN VALL IS SPOKEN OF TO SUCCEED FRANK W. BRUNSKILL

Minneapolis, May 26.—(UP) — Herman Vall, captain of the St. Paul detective force, has been mentioned as a successor to Frank W. Brunskill, dismissed Minneapolis police chief.

Mayor George E. Leach, who discharged Brunskill for "personal disloyalty," has declined to discuss the situation but has intimated that he, himself, would take over the police force June 1.

The Minneapolis council Friday adopted a resolution requesting the two officials to appear before the body to explain reasons for the dismissal.

DELEGATES MUST PERSONALLY CLAIM CONVENTION SEATS

Washington, May 26.—(U.P.)—The republican national committee stated here today no seats would be allotted state delegations until the delegates arrive personally in Kansas City for the republican national convention June 12.

Committee headquarters said this rule was adopted two months ago and would be adhered to unless some unusual development arises. Allotment of the seats will be made at Kansas City.

May Award Gold Medals to Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine

Washington, May 26. — (U.P.) — The house coinage committee reported favorably today the Brookhart bill, passed by the senate, authorizing President Coolidge to award gold medals to Clarence A. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine, trans-Atlantic fliers. The committee recently reported a bill bestowing the medal only upon Chamberlin, but recalled it today and added Levine.

THROWS BILL INTO PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN NOW

VOTE WAS FORCED BY FARM BLOC TO MAKE A RECORD

20 REPUBLICANS STOOD BY THE PRESIDENT, 19 STOOD FOR THE BILL

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, May 26.—The McNary-Haugen bill was thrown into the presidential campaign today by action of the senate upholding President Coolidge's veto. The measure failed 50 to 31 to get the two-thirds majority necessary for adoption without the president's signature.

The vote was forced by the farm bloc to make a record upon which it will go into the Kansas City convention seeking a McNary-Haugen bill plank in the platform.

The party is almost equally divided upon the issue as far as its senatorial representation is concerned. Twenty republicans stood by the president and 19 stood for the bill. Of the eight republican absentees, four were paired with the president and four against.

Senator Goff of West Virginia, a third candidate, was absent but was paired with the president. The two candidates who remained against the president despite the veto were Senators Watson of Indiana and Norris of Nebraska.

The voting was conducted under the supervision of Vice-President Dawes, who helped frame the bill and who is as ardent a supporter for it as his position will permit.

While the senatorial alignment shows an equal division on the issue, the president's friends are expected to be in the saddle at the convention. An analysis of the vote shows no republican from a state east of Indiana voted for the bill. The eastern states will have a dominating influence at the convention with the help of the administration delegates from the south.

But even with a majority in the convention, many administration friends are worried about the possible effect of a bitter convention fight over the issue. They are particularly apprehensive because the two leading candidates of the party Secretary of Commerce Hoover and former Gov. Lowden of Illinois, represent the party's division on the issue.

Many of the bloc leaders make no secret of their bitterness against the president. They expected him to veto the measure, but they did not expect his vehement denunciation and ridicule of their economic theories.

GIVES UP ATTEMPT TO ROLLER SKATE ACROSS COUNTRY

Ashtabula, O., May 26.—(U.P.)—Asa Halls, of Kansas City, Mo., gave up his attempt to roller skate from Kansas City to New York when his feet "gave out" here today. Halls was attempting to beat the C. C. Pyle bunion derbyists. He had been progressing steadily, but slowed down on reaching Ohio.

BELIEVE GIRL ABDUCTED, SLAIN BY A MANIAC

Youngstown, O., May 26.—(U.P.)—Authorities, reluctant to abandon a two weeks' old search, were completely without tangible clues today to the whereabouts of 10-year-old Beatrice Rosenbaum.

The child last was seen two weeks ago when she drove away with a middle-aged man who had stopped his automobile beside her and offered her a ride.

The theory that Beatrice was abducted, abused and slain by a maniac is outstanding.

London, May 26—(U.P.)—United States Ambassador Alanson B. Houghton sailed for New York today aboard the S. S. Berengaria. The ambassador said his trip was purely private although he probably will attend the republican national convention in Kansas City.

WYMORE, NEB., BANK IS ROBBED

Wymore, Neb., May 26.—(U.P.)—The Farmers and Merchants Bank was robbed o fan undetermined sum here today by five armed bandits.

It was believed the men were the same bandits that held up the First National Bank at Lamar, Colo., last Wednesday and since have been the object of a widespread search.

SEAPLANE X-PN-12 IN NEW RECORD ENDURANCE FLIGHT

Philadelphia, May 26.—(U.P.)—The seaplane X-PN-12 established a new record for an endurance flight with a pay-load—2,240 pounds—today when it landed at 4:47 a. m. after being in the air 17 hours and 55 minutes.

The plane was piloted by Lieutenant Zeus Soucek and Lieutenant Lisle J. Maxson with G. C. Poisy as machinist.

The old record was broken at 10:16 p. m. last night when the ship had been in the air 10 hours and 23 minutes.

AIRPLANES AND POSSES JOIN IN WIDE MAN-HUNT

SEARCH FOR 4 BANDITS WHO KILLED 2 BANK OFFICIALS AT LAMAR, COLO.

400 MEN IN CARS AND AIRPLANES BELIEVED CLOSING IN ON BANDITS

Denver, Colo., May 26.—(UP) — Airplanes, machine-gun posses and hundreds of heavily-armed volunteers were joined today in one of the most extensive man-hunts in the history of the west.

The search for four bandits who killed two bank officials Wednesday in a $44,000 holdup at Lamar, Colo., spread to five states.

While 400 men in motor cars, assisted by observers in airplanes, were reported to be closing in on the robbers near Oakley, Kan., organized pursuits were in progress also in Oklahoma, Colorado, Nebraska and New Mexico.

The bandits, who killed A. N. Parrish, president of the First National Bank of Lamar, and his son, John, cashier of the bank, during the robbery, were believed to have killed two other men in their flight.

One is Dr. W. W. Wineinger of Dighton, Kan., whose body was found 25 miles south of Oakley, Kan., yesterday with shotgun wounds in the head. The other is E. A. Kessinger, cashier, whom the bandits abducted when they robbed the bank. No word of him has been received since the holdup, and he was believed to have been slain.

Kansas authorities believed they had forced the bandits into hiding in the brakes along the Smoky Hill river somewhere between Oakley and Scott City. The pursuers were prepared for a battle, since the bandits were reported to be armed with a machine gun.

All bridges from Dodge City to the Colorado state line were guarded closely.

Authorities of Oakley and Scott City, Kansas, were investigating the possibility that Dr. W. W. Wineinger, physician, believed to have been kidnaped by the bandits with the idea that he would treat a wounded member of the gang, may have been tortured before being put to death.

Dr. Wineinger's body was found between the two cities. It bore evidences of a severe beating and it was thought that, discovering the men with whom he was dealing, the physician may have refused to help them. A note left in his car near his body was found referred to "doctors and murderers" and it was held that the wounded bandit may have died and the others taken vengeance on the physician.

Dr. Wineinger's bandages, medicine case and coat were found at intervals along a highway leading toward Colby, Kansas, and it was thought the bandits may have fled in that direction.

TAX REDUCTION BILL SENT TO PRES. COOLIDGE

Washington, May 26. — (U.P.) — The $223,495,000 tax reduction bill was sent to President Coolidge today.

Congressional action was completed by house adoption of the conference report approved yesterday by the senate. The income tax publicity section of the bill was removed by the upper house in adopting the report yesterday.

OWL EYED BOY OF ITALY MAY GAIN U. S. ENTRY

New York, May 26.—(U.P.)—Deportation of Giovanni Galvanti, the owl eyed boy, and his mother has been stayed. The curiously afflicted Italian may yet see the new wonders of the new world although he can see only at night.

Issuance of a writ of habeas corpus by Judge John C. Knox has automatically halted the deportation.

The two were ordered deported when it was learned Giovanni suffered from a peculiar affliction that forced him to close his eyes in the day time. He says he can see perfectly at night.

Harlan, Ky., May 26.—(U.P.)—The tragic death of Floyd Collins may be experienced by another Kentuckian it was feared here today as search continued in the Black Mountain corporation coal mine for Fred Romines, 45 years old.

Romines was last seen running from the scene of an explosion that killed seven miners Tuesday night. Preliminary search of the mine failed to reveal any trace of him. Miners believe he is alive and entombed somewhere in the inner mine workings.

FARMERS DEMAND ECONOMIC EQUALITY FOR AGRICULTURE

FARMERS TO MARCH TO REPUBLICAN NATIONAL CONVENTION, KANSAS CITY

St. Paul, May 26.—(UP)—Thousands of Minnesota farmers and agricultural leaders would join in the proposed "march of farmers" to the republican national convention at Kansas City to demand economic quality for agriculture, according to an opinion voiced here by J. F. Reed, president of the Minnesota Farm Bureau Federation.

"Despite the fact that the republican convention conflicts with the busy farm season a great many of them would enter the move. They regard a pledge on farm relief as more important than the tasks at hand," he asserted.

HERMAN VALL IS SPOKEN OF TO SUCCEED FRANK W. BRUNSKILL

Minneapolis, May 26.—(UP) — Herman Vall, captain of the St. Paul detective force, has been mentioned as a successor to Frank W. Brunskill, dismissed Minneapolis police chief.

Mayor George E. Leach, who discharged Brunskill for "personal disloyalty," has declined to discuss the situation but has intimated that he, himself, would take over the police force June 1.

The Minneapolis council Friday adopted a resolution requesting the two officials to appear before the body to explain reasons for the dismissal.

DELEGATES MUST PERSONALLY CLAIM CONVENTION SEATS

Washington, May 26.—(U.P.)—The republican national committee stated here today no seats would be allotted state delegations until the delegates arrive personally in Kansas City for the republican national convention June 12.

Committee headquarters said this rule was adopted two months ago and would be adhered to unless some unusual development arises. Allotment of the seats will be made at Kansas City.

May Award Gold Medals to Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine

Washington, May 26. — (U.P.) — The house coinage committee reported favorably today the Brookhart bill, passed by the senate, authorizing President Coolidge to award gold medals to Clarence A. Chamberlin and Charles A. Levine, trans-Atlantic fliers. The committee recently reported a bill bestowing the medal only upon Chamberlin, but recalled it today and added Levine.

THROWS BILL INTO PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN NOW

VOTE WAS FORCED BY FARM BLOC TO MAKE A RECORD

20 REPUBLICANS STOOD BY THE PRESIDENT, 19 STOOD FOR THE BILL

By PAUL R. MALLON
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Washington, May 26.—The McNary-Haugen bill was thrown into the presidential campaign today by action of the senate upholding President Coolidge's veto. The measure failed 50 to 31 to get the two-thirds majority necessary for adoption without the president's signature.

The vote was forced by the farm bloc to make a record upon which it will go into the Kansas City convention seeking a McNary-Haugen bill plank in the platform.

The party is almost equally divided upon the issue as far as its senatorial representation is concerned. Twenty republicans stood by the president and 19 stood for the bill. Of the eight republican absentees, four were paired with the president and four against.

Senator Goff of West Virginia, a third candidate, was absent but was paired with the president. The two candidates who remained against the president despite the veto were Senators Watson of Indiana and Norris of Nebraska.

The voting was conducted under the supervision of Vice-President Dawes, who helped frame the bill and who is as ardent a supporter for it as his position will permit.

While the senatorial alignment shows an equal division on the issue, the president's friends are expected to be in the saddle at the convention. An analysis of the vote shows no republican from a state east of Indiana voted for the bill. The eastern states will have a dominating influence at the convention with the help of the administration delegates from the south.

But even with a majority in the convention, many administration friends are worried about the possible effect of a bitter convention fight over the issue. They are particularly apprehensive because the two leading candidates of the party Secretary of Commerce Hoover and former Gov. Lowden of Illinois, represent the party's division on the issue.

Many of the bloc leaders make no secret of their bitterness against the president. They expected him to veto the measure, but they did not expect his vehement denunciation and ridicule of their economic theories.

GIVES UP ATTEMPT TO ROLLER SKATE ACROSS COUNTRY

Ashtabula, O., May 26.—(U.P.)—Asa Halls, of Kansas City, Mo., gave up his attempt to roller skate from Kansas City to New York when his feet "gave out" here today. Halls was attempting to beat the C. C. Pyle bunion derbyists. He had been progressing steadily, but slowed down on reaching Ohio.

BELIEVE GIRL ABDUCTED, SLAIN BY A MANIAC

Youngstown, O., May 26.—(U.P.)—Authorities, reluctant to abandon a two weeks' old search, were completely without tangible clues today to the whereabouts of 10-year-old Beatrice Rosenbaum.

The child last was seen two weeks ago when she drove away with a middle-aged man who had stopped his automobile beside her and offered her a ride.

The theory that Beatrice was abducted, abused and slain by a maniac is outstanding.

BURNING QUESTION OF NEW MORALITY

FINDS ITS WAY INTO THE NEW YORK SUPREME COURT

New York, May 26.—(UP)—The burning question of the new morality has found its way into the New York supreme court. Branded pro and con by thinkers of the day, the question is at last subject to decision of a legal nature.

Mrs. Blanche Huber, pretty 22-year-old artist's model, has entered the question as defendant in the divorce suit of her husband, a stockbroker, who charges her with visiting other men's apartments in addition to being out late when he was not her escort.

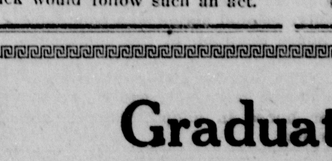

"There is a new morality," says Mrs. Huber, "that should be recognized by the courts as it is by young men and women. It is as conventional now to go to a man's apartment as it is to go to the movies or tea with him. The old fashioned girl used rouge and said it was natural. The modern girl uses rouge, admits it, and laughs at it."

The Hubers were married in January, 1927. Two months later the wife returned home, saying her husband was "old-fashioned" and that he still had the old idea of "get 'em young and train 'em." Mrs. Huber since has sued for separation, Huber following with the suit for divorce.

Know Your Sweetheart by His Handwriting

By EDNA PURDY WALSH
Editor, Character Reading Magazine.

Is He Religious?

This expression here is not so much applied to church as it is to appreciation of life. Does your life-partner-to-be revere things that are fine and uplifting inspirationally? Here is a way to check this quality and in so doing you will know that you have a friend in the writer who will always be fair.

Look for the t's and d's to rise high. The latter part of of the letter m will be seen to rise higher than the other parts. T bars will slant upward and writing will be medium of pressure and never heavy. Terminals will flow out and upward and occasionally turn backward.

The writing will generally have an appearance of flowing on as a stream. The lower loop of the letter f will be large and reach far down below the line.

Capitals will be prettily formed and there will be much order in the general appearance. Margins will be wide and even.

Words will increase in size, being larger at the end than at the start. A's and o's will be written open. Much space will be used between words and letters.

Note.—Do not make final judgment until other signs in writing are studied.

Superstition Traced

The superstition that it is unlucky to light three cigarettes with one match has its origin in the fact that in the old Russian funeral service three altar candles were lighted from one taper. It was considered an act of impiety to make any other lights in groups of three, and therefore ill luck would follow such an act.

Fall Army Worm Is of Interest

Often Dispersed and Breeds Through Greater Part of United States.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

One of the few insects that frequently disperse and breed through the greater part of the United States, only to perish at the end of the summer season, the fall army worm, is of great interest to students of economic entomology and of pure biology. When the fall army worm is spreading from field to field and from state to state, the insect is of great interest and a matter of dread to farmers. Philip Luginbill of the bureau of entomology, in Technical Bulletin No. 34-T, "The Fall Army Worm," just published by the United States Department of Agriculture, gives a history of recent depredations by the insect, estimates the damage done, explores the life history of the insect and suggests repression by mechanical, chemical, and natural means.

Cannot Endure Cold Weather.

The fall army worm cannot live through cold weather. In the United States it winters only in southern Texas and southern Florida. However, on numerous occasions it has spread over many of the southern states and at one time or another has invaded all the Atlantic coast states south of New Hampshire, all the Ohio valley, the Mississippi valley north to the neighborhood of Minneapolis, and has extended its range westward approximately to the Rocky mountains. It feeds on a large number of valuable plants, does serious damage to crops, and migrates northward in waves in seasons when the outbreak is serious. The larval forms do the damage to crops. The advance is made by the winged adult.

Preventing Injury.

The best method of preventing injury in northern states is to prevent multiplication of the early stages of the insect in the southern fields. When fields are infested farmers may help their own crops by control measures, and at the same time prevent the northward spread of the pest. When the worms have stripped one field they may march to another. Thousands may be killed by plowing a deep furrow across their path and dragging a log through the furrow. Similarly a roller may be used on lawns or on a hard road. Several sprays, dusts, and poisons have proved effective. Birds are active enemies of the fall army worm, and several insects, also, prey on it. Skunks, frogs, and toads eat many.

Technical Bulletin No. 34-T gives in full experimental studies on the life history and the bionomics of the insect. It will be of interest principally to entomologists and biologists. It may be obtained while the limited supply lasts, upon application to the United States Department of Agriculture.

BURNING QUESTION OF NEW MORALITY

FINDS ITS WAY INTO THE NEW YORK SUPREME COURT

New York, May 26.—(UP)—The burning question of the new morality has found its way into the New York supreme court. Branded pro and con by thinkers of the day, the question is at last subject to decision of a legal nature.

Mrs. Blanche Huber, pretty 22-year-old artist's model, has entered the question as defendant in the divorce suit of her husband, a stock-broker, who charges her with visiting other men's apartments in addition to being out late when he was not her escort.

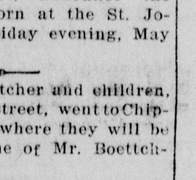

"There is a new morality," says Mrs. Huber, "that should be recognized by the courts as it is by young men and women. It is as conventional now to go to a man's apartment as it is to go to the movies or tea with him. The old fashioned girl used rouge and said it was natural. The modern girl uses rouge, admits it, and laughs at it."

The Hubers were married in January, 1927. Two months later the wife returned home, saying her husband was "old-fashioned" and that he still had the old idea of "get 'em young and train 'em." Mrs. Huber since has sued for separation, Huber following with the suit for divorce.

Know Your Sweetheart by His Handwriting

By EDNA PURDY WALSH
Editor, Character Reading Magazine.

Is He Religious?

This expression here is not so much applied to church as it is to appreciation of life. Does your life-partner-to-be revere things that are fine and uplifting inspirationally? Here is a way to check this quality and in so doing you will know that you have a friend in the writer who will always be fair.

Look for the t's and d's to rise high. The latter part of the letter m will be seen to rise higher than the other parts. T bars will slant upward and writing will be medium of pressure and never heavy. Terminals will flow out and upward and occasionally turn backward.

The writing will generally have an appearance of flowing on as a stream. The lower loop of the letter f will be large and reach far down below the line.

Capitals will be prettily formed and there will be much order in the general appearance. Margins will be wide and even.

Words will increase in size, being larger at the end than at the start. A's and o's will be written open. Much space will be used between words and letters.

Note.—Do not make final judgment until other signs in writing are studied.

Superstition Traced

The superstition that it is unlucky to light three cigarettes with one match has its origin in the fact that in the old Russian funeral service three altar candles were lighted from one taper. It was considered an act of impiety to make any other lights in groups of three, and therefore ill luck would follow such an act.

Fall Army Worm Is of Interest

Often Dispersed and Breeds Through Greater Part of United States.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

One of the few insects that frequently disperse and breed through the greater part of the United States, only to perish at the end of the summer season, the fall army worm, is of great interest to students of economic entomology and of pure biology. When the fall army worm is spreading from field to field and from state to state, the insect is of great interest and a matter of dread to farmers. Philip Luginbill of the bureau of entomology, in Technical Bulletin No. 34-T, "The Fall Army Worm," just published by the United States Department of Agriculture, gives a history of recent depredations by the insect, estimates the damage done, explores the life history of the insect and suggests repression by mechanical, chemical, and natural means.

Cannot Endure Cold Weather.

The fall army worm cannot live through cold weather. In the United States it winters only in southern Texas and southern Florida. However, on numerous occasions it has spread over many of the southern states and at one time or another has invaded all the Atlantic coast states south of New Hampshire, all the Ohio valley, the Mississippi valley north to the neighborhood of Minneapolis, and has extended its range westward approximately to the Rocky mountains. It feeds on a large number of valuable plants, does serious damage to crops, and migrates northward in waves in seasons when the outbreak is serious. The larval forms do the damage to crops. The advance is made by the winged adult.

Preventing Injury.

The best method of preventing injury in northern states is to prevent multiplication of the early stages of the insect in the southern fields. When fields are infested farmers may help their own crops by control measures, and at the same time prevent the northward spread of the pest. When the worms have stripped one field they may march to another. Thousands may be killed by plowing a deep furrow across their path and dragging a log through the furrow. Similarly a roller may be used on lawns or on a hard road. Several sprays, dusts, and poisons have proved effective. Birds are active enemies of the fall army worm, and several insects, also, prey on it. Skunks, frogs, and toads eat many.

Technical Bulletin No. 34-T gives in full experimental studies on the life history and the bionomics of the insect. It will be of interest principally to entomologists and biologists. It may be obtained while the limited supply lasts, upon application to the United States Department of Agriculture.

Japan has been raked again by a severe storm. That land in recent years has suffered intensely from visitations of one kind and another of the elements, including terrible earthquakes, but its people are ever hopeful and nothing seems to deter them from building a greater empire.

One thing about Colonel Lindbergh is that the more he delves into politics and diplomacy, the more enthusiastic he becomes over aviation.

SCHOOL OPENS JUNE 4

Continues to Friday Noon, June 15; New Beginners Department Organized

The Brainerd Union daily vacation Bible school will for the second time commence Monday, June 4 at 9 a. m. and continue to Friday noon, June 15, the Methodist and Congregational church schools uniting under the supervision of both pastors. Four departmental superintendents and their helpers will assist.

The school affords a practical demonstration of interdenominational fellowship. Chidren of other churches not having a daily vacation Bible school to attend are invited. The parents of these children are assured that the Bible alone will be used as the basis for the teaching.

Instruction will include the interpretation of hymnody, missions, handwork, dramatization and world friendship from the standpoint of the Bible, acquainting the children with its stories, parables, miracles and prophecies, particularly from the standpoint of the life of Jesus.

A new beginners department has been organized. The beginners and the junior department will meet in the Methodist church while the primary and intermediate departments will meet in the Congregational church.

COMPLETE PROGRAM FOR MEMORIAL DAY

Parade Wednesday to Form at 8:30 A. M. on 7th Street; W. V. Turcotte Marshall

MARCH TO CEMETERY

J. J. Quiglev, St. Cloud, to Deliver Memorial Day Address at Evergreen

The complete program for Memorial Day Wednesday as arranged by the general committee was announced today.

The parade will form between 8:30 and 9 A. M. on Seventh street, the same as last year, with William V. Turcotte as marshall of the parade. The American Legion veterans will be in charge of O. A. Peterson, and all ex-service men are invited to turn out. Brief exercises, in charge of a detachment from the American Legion, will be held at the Mississippi river bridge in honor of departed comrades from the navy, while the parade is forming.

The line of march will be the same as last year, east on Front street to Eighth street; north on Eighth to Kingwood; east on Kingwood to Third Avenue N. E.; north on Third Avenue N. E. to the Lowell school; west from Lowell school to cemetery.

Colors.
Firing squad.
Brainerd City band.
Official carriages for G. A. R., Spanish-American war veterans, Ladies of W. R. C. and Circle.
Spanish-American War veterans (marching).
Members of American Legion and other World war veterans.
Members of the C. M. T. C.
Boy scouts and drum corps.
Camp Fire Girls.
Y. M. C. A. Pioneers.
High school by classes.
City schools: Lowell, Lincoln, Whittier, Harrison.

Bands will be assigned to positions in the parade by the marshall of the parade at convenient intervals.

Any organizations not mentioned above will be gladly welcomed and assigned a position in the column by the marshall, Wm. V. Turcotte.

The program at the cemetery follows:

Music—Brainerd City band.
Invocation.
Music—Swedish Glee club.
Lincoln's Gettysburg address—Donald McNamara, president senior class.
Music—Ladies band, in charge of Miss Effie Drexler.
Memorial Day address—J. J. Quigley, St. Cloud.
Music—Elks quartet.

DAILY VACATION BIBLE SCHOOL

Methodist and Congregational Church Schools Unite for Instructions

SCHOOL OPENS JUNE 4

Continues to Friday Noon, June 15; New Beginners Department Organized

The Brainerd Union daily vacation Bible school will for the second time commence Monday, June 4 at 9 a. m. and continue to Friday noon, June 15, the Methodist and Congregational church schools uniting under the supervision of both pastors. Four departmental superintendents and their helpers will assist.

The school affords a practical demonstration of interdenominational fellowship. Children of other churches not having a daily vacation Bible school to attend are invited. The parents of these children are assured that the Bible alone will be used as the basis for the teaching.

Instruction will include the interpretation of hymnody, missions, handwork, dramatization and world friendship from the standpoint of the Bible, acquainting the children with its stories, parables, miracles and prophecies, particularly from the standpoint of the life of Jesus.

A new beginners department has been organized. The beginners and the junior department will meet in the Methodist church while the primary and intermediate departments will meet in the Congregational church.

COMPLETE PROGRAM FOR MEMORIAL DAY

Parade Wednesday to Form at 8:30 A. M. on 7th Street; W. V. Turcotte Marshall

MARCH TO CEMETERY

J. J. Quiglev, St. Cloud, to Deliver Memorial Day Address at Evergreen

The complete program for Memorial Day Wednesday as arranged by the general committee was announced today.

The parade will form between 8:30 and 9 A. M. on Seventh street, the same as last year, with William V. Turcotte as marshall of the parade. The American Legion veterans will be in charge of O. A. Peterson, and all ex-service men are invited to turn out. Brief exercises, in charge of a detachment from the American Legion, will be held at the Mississippi river bridge in honor of departed comrades from the navy, while the parade is forming.

The line of march will be the same as last year, east on Front street to Eighth street; north on Eighth to Kingwood; east on Kingwood to Third Avenue N. E.; north on Third Avenue N. E. to the Lowell school; west from Lowell school to cemetery.

Colors.
Firing squad.
Brainerd City band.
Official carriages for G. A. R., Spanish-American war veterans, Ladies of W. R. C. and Circle.
Spanish-American War veterans (marching).
Members of American Legion and other World war veterans.
Members of the C. M. T. C.
Boy scouts and drum corps.
Camp Fire Girls.
Y. M. C. A. Pioneers.
High school by classes.
City schools: Lowell, Lincoln, Whittier, Harrison.

Bands will be assigned to positions in the parade by the marshall of the parade at convenient intervals.

Any organizations not mentioned above will be gladly welcomed and assigned a position in the column by the marshall, Wm. V. Turcotte.

The program at the cemetery follows:

Music—Brainerd City band.
Invocation.
Music—Swedish Glee club.
Lincoln's Gettysburg address—Donald McNamara, president senior class.
Music—Ladies band, in charge of Miss Effie Drexler.
Memorial Day address—J. J. Quigley, St. Cloud.
Music—Elks quartet.
G. A. R. ritual conducted by Commander Albert Fox, assisted by Adjutant Mrs. A. Fox.
Music—Ladies band conducted by Mrs. Norman Ziebell.
Decoration of the cross, Commander Fox assisted by Relief Corps and Circle Ladies.
Swedish Glee club.
Remarks, Mayor Frank E. Little.
Star Spangled Banner lead by F. B. Lind, with band accompaniment.
Salute, firing squad.
Taps, in charge of Charles Hill and Scout Executive Perry Newton.
Executive committee in charge follows: E. H. Rhodes, D. H. Fullerton, William V. Turcotte, O. A. Peterson.

POLITICAL INDIGNATION

THE Duluth Herald takes up consideration of the McNary-Haugen bill and says there is no surprise in Coolidge's veto, and then presents its arguments as to why farm relief has failed. The editorial reads:

President Coolidge vetoed the McNary-Haugen bill because it contained a price-fixing and price-boosting device in its equalization fee.

He does not believe that the problem of a farm-product surplus can be solved by tempting growers through guaranteed prices to make the surplus larger. That being so, it was his duty to veto this plan, and he could not honestly do otherwise.

There is no surprise in this veto. It was known when the bill was introduced with the equalization fee in it that it would be vetoed if it passed. It was known when the bill was being debated in both houses. It was known when it was passed. And now it has happened, and all efforts for farm relief at this session are a failure. Passage over the veto is impossible, since it requires two-thirds of the whole congress, not merely two-thirds of those voting.

Why has farm relief failed?

Politicians, affecting a mighty indignation for political effect, including a Minnesota Democratic candidate for senator who forgets that he does not know how Al Smith stands on this or any other national issue, say that it is because the president vetoed this bill.

The fact is that farm relief has failed because congress, and especially those in congress and out of it who pretend to be the farmer's great friends, chose to waste their time and energies on a measure which they knew it was impossible to pass, instead of trying to work out a measure that would help and that could be made a law.

The farmer may be in need of relief; he has been, truly enough, though his conditions are getting better fast. He may or may not believe in the McNary-Haugen formula as his sole hope of salvation. But political purposes have largely inspired the origin and history of this measure, and political purposes largely inspire the indignation which greets the veto.

Those who didn't want any real farm relief at this session because it would rob Lowden and Dawes of all their campaign thunder, leaving them without an issue, no doubt are loudest of all in their indignant outcries.

CONFIDENTIAL COMMUNICATIONS

UNDER the laws of all the states communications made in professional confidence cannot be disclosed in evidence by the person to whom they were made without the consent of the person making them.

This statute prevents doctors, clergymen and attorneys from testifying to what patients, penitents or clients have told them in a confidential way or from testifying from facts found out by chance through professional relation.

A United States circuit court of appeals had this question up recently in an Iowa case. A patient died in a hospital, and one of the hospital staff, who had not treated the patient, took part in making an autopsy on the dead body. Heirs of the deceased had sued an accident insurance company, and the company defended on the ground that death was not caused by accident.

The insurance company offered to prove by the hospital physician that death was not caused by an exterior accident, but was the result of certain internal conditions disclosed by the autopsy. The Iowa judge held that the hospital authority could not testify as to the facts he claimed to have found in the autopsy.

But the Federal judges rule just the other way and they have the last guess. They point out that a dead man is not a patient. No patient had disclosed anything to the proposed witness. He made his discoveries through an examination of a dead body. It was his right and duty to testify if called up, the court rules.

The court points out, however, that if the doctor who had been the physician of the deceased had made the autopsy, he could not testify so as to betray any confidence.

This ruling seems reasonable. Assuming that a doctor's knowledge comes only from an autopsy in no way growing out of and not connected with confidential relations, he should be allowed to testify. If the autopsy came about through pre-existing confidential relations, and tended to betray them, the facts it disclosed should be as sacred as verbal communications during life.

SOCIAL UNREST AND EVOLUTION

IF universities, art galleries and churches arouse social unrest, as stated by Dr. Charles Stelzle of New York, in Minneapolis Tuesday, then social unrest is truly one of the greatest liberating forces which can affect mankind.

Social unrest, applied in its wide sense by Dr. Stelzle, is not merely the squabbling between labor and capital or the anti-capitalistic movement which has made such a mark on Russia. While encompassing these things, it means much more than this narrow though commonly applied meaning of the term. By Dr. Stelzle's implied definition, social unrest is mankind's perpetual urge to improve itself and to make life more livable on this planet.

Turn back history's pages and regard those countries and civilizations where education and art were reserved for an oligarchy of the few, where religion for the masses was little more than pagan superstitution. There you will find few signs of "social unrest" and there also you will find populations as ignorant as they were oppressed, living an existence little above the animal plane.

The struggle of the great majority, once the light of learning gave them a glimpse of higher things, has been to lift themselves above the mire and naturally it has not been accomplished without opposition from despots and tyrants who profited by their submission.

If art galleries breed social unrest, if fine public schools and churches teach man to aspire to something beyond himself, they are contributing to the greatest of causes—the continuing evolution of man to a higher and better goal.—Minneapolis Star.

THE SCHOOL VOTE

EVERY proposition submitted at the school election carried except the bond issue for the north side school. There a regulation of the state investment board proved an obstacle, as it called for a majority of all the votes cast.

The proposition called for a bond issue to the State of Minnesota and not in the open market.

GLORIOUS BETSY

NOVELIZED BY
ARLINE DE HAAS

Copyright 1928, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

"GLORIOUS BETSY," starring Dolores Costello, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel. Based on the play by Rida Johnson Young.

SYNOPSIS

Captain Jerome Bonaparte, brother of Napoleon and his ambassador to America, msquerades as a tutor and wins the love of the bewitching Betsy Patterson. At a banquet given in her home his identity is revealed and they become publicly betrothed. Jerome's aides fear the consequences of his engagement. They take Jerome aside and warn him against upsetting the Emperor's plans. Jerome marries Betsy and they sail for France. When they arrive in port Betsy is not allowed to land. A messenger arrives on the boat summoning Jerome to Napoleon's presence.

CHAPTER XIII—Continued

"Oh, Jerome, I'm afraid." She clung to him, her eyes misty with tears. "I wouldn't let the others know, but I'm afraid of Napoleon." She placed her hand over his mouth silencing him. "Ah, but I must talk. I can't help it. A moment ago when that man St. Pierre was here I was cold with terror. A feeling crept into my heart that was almost like a prophesy that—that he, your brother, was going to take you away from me. Oh, he is so powerful, so relentless. Before the others I made believe I had no fears, but it wasn't true, Jerome, it wasn't true. I was just pretending. I'm afraid!" Her head dropped on Jerome's shoulder.

"Do you not trust me, cherie?" he questioned, kissing the red curls

"I love you, Jerome, but you must remember," she lifted her head and looked up into Jerome's face, "that no harm or sorrow must come to you through my love. You must remember I don't hold you."

"Ah, but your heart is dreadfully easily mended," she pulled away from him, stifling the fear that was catching in sudden shooting pains at her breast. "And what of my heart? What do you think it makes me feel to be called 'Mademoiselle' in that Bonaparte sort of way? And you're unjust, too. Didn't I love you when I thought you were only a tutor, and didn't I promise to marry you before I even knew that you were the brother of the First Consul of France—let alone the Emperor? And I love you now, more every moment. Deep in my heart of hearts you're nestling, Jerome, you'll be there forever, and when forever is over you'll still be there."

"Yes, yes, of course, you must go—you must go, Jerome," Betsy pushed her laggard husband towards the side of the vessel.

"Betty, if you do not believe that love is stronger than anything else in the world I will not go." Jerome caught her in his arms once more, straining her to him.

"You must see how we always differ," she laughed, but her laughter was feigned. "You say you won't go, and I say you will. Oh, dear, I know we are going to fight scandalously when you return."

"But you must promise me never to have any fear again." Jerome kissed her lingeringly. "Promise me?"

"I promise. I won't be afraid any more. Fate's a darling and I know she has nothing but dear, adorable things in store for Betsy Patterson. Good-bye, my darling, or perhaps we should say au revoir." She kissed him, and pushed him from her.

CHAPTER XIV

Betsy stood swaying slightly, her eyes tight shut to close out the figure of her departing husband, her hands clenched tight until the knuckles of the pink-tipped fingers stood out raw and white. She choked back a sob and turned to run blindly into her cabin. But even as Jerome stepped over the railing and on to the ladder there came a call that halted his retreat and brought Betsy to sudden attention.

"Throw a line! The Emperor would board you!" The voice came from below as the sound of a body mounting along the side of the ship could be heard. The order brought all deck-hands to attention; the captain came running from below.

Framed in the door of her cabin Betsy stood, her wide eyes staring. "The Emperor!" she breathed.

Over the side of the vessel stepped the muffled figure that had been seated in the boat below. Behind him marched two soldiers. From beneath the cocked hat, gleaming eyes glanced hastily over the deck and then rested on Betsy. For an instant the girl gasped, fascinated at the sight of the man she had dreamed of meeting, but even the sudden shock of this long waited for encounter could not take from her her presence of mind. She curtsied low and rose, smiling that winning smile that had brought the beaux of America to her feet. It was her one chance to win over the Emperor and she intended to make the most of it.

Napoleon gazed at her searchingly. He even smiled slightly as he appraised the beautiful figure, revealed as the gray cloak slipped from the beautiful shoulders of his brother's wife. "I wish to speak to Mademoiselle Patterson alone." The Emperor of France gave his command and motioned his soldiers to fall back.

Jerome, however, ignored his brother's words. He stepped forward hesitatingly as he caught the warning glance in Napoleon's eyes. "Sire!" he exclaimed.

"Captain Bonaparte!" The words shut off any further objection that Jerome might make. Cold, harsh, commanding. Napoleon glared at his brother. "I wish to speak to Mademoiselle Patterson alone!" He reiterated his command.

"But Sire, I—" The words came haltingly and Jerome glanced appealingly at St. Pierre and Dufresne as they quietly swung aboard the ship.

"Captain Bonaparte, would you force me to place you in irons?" The haughty voice cut off the words sharply. "Leave us!"

Jerome looked sullenly between his brother and his wife. For a moment he did not stir, but Betsy's words brought him to attention.

"Go, Jerome, for my sake, go!" She did not intend to be so forceful and commanding; rather, she was making an appeal, but the very presence of the famous figure lent her a touch of royalty, and Jerome, realizing that he was only interfering, saluted and stepped back towards the mast with Major Patterson.

"Hm!" Napoleon cleared his throat, choosing his words carefully. "Mademoiselle," he began, "when you want a man to do something you must go to the woman he loves." He paused considering the effect of his statement. Then he continued: "France wants Jerome Bonaparte—So I come to you."

Betsy's smile faded slowly. She realized that the Emperor spoke in all seriousness. She knew now that she was not face to face with one of her Baltimore beaux who would bend the knee at her slightest gesture. Instead she was playing a part in a game as big as any of historical significance. She drew herself up haughtily as though resenting the intimation that she was holding Jerome from his duty. "Sire," she bent her head and then gazed with straight-forward glance at her opponent. "When France needs the services of Captain Bonaparte I shall be the first to buckle on his sword."

Napoleon nodded approvingly but his voice was curt. "That right may never be yours, Mademoiselle. In order to assure the alliance of the House of Wurttemberg I have affianced my brother to the Princess Friedericka."

Betsy looked searchingly at the Emperor. The cold, stern figure frightened her. "You do not know—you do not understand," she burst out. "We love each other. He will never abandon me. I am his wife!" She raised her head proudly, the very words, the reminder that she and Jerome were already married, bolstering her courage.

Napoleon shrugged his shoulders. "Then, Mademoiselle, it is for you to abandon him. The marriage of a commoner to one of royal blood is a union most easily dissolved."

Betsy gasped. She shrank back. "But, Sire," she spoke in all simplicity, "he is my very life."

"Mademoiselle, beneath the destiny of every great man the heart of some woman lies crushed." Napoleon's words were stern and unyielding, but his eyes were sympathetic, and he sighed as though regretting that his duty made it necessary to hurt this lovely creature.

"Then you will listen to me?" Betsy pleaded.

Cactus Apples for Candy

Near San Fernando, Calif., is a large farm, devoted to the raising of cactus apples, the pulpy product of one of the species of the familiar desert plant. The apple is used for the making of jellies and candies, or is eaten in its natural state. It has a sweet taste, and is about 80 per cent water. An acre of land will produce 500 or 600 boxes of the apples, which were selling for $1.25 a box last season.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Paper Boxes

Certain fibrous materials other than wood, such as jute, hemp and manila fibers, may sometimes be used in the manufacture of paper boxes; also the cheaper grades of colored cotton rags may be used as raw material. A very large part of the raw material going into the manufacture of paper board consists of waste papers as collected and marketed in all of the good-sized cities in the country.

If you were considering the purchase of stocks and bonds, you'd do a lot of studying before you actually parted with your money! You'd want to know about the company—its policy—its past record. . . .

Yet that money represents only your surplus. Every day you spend money—almost all your earnings—upon the requisites of life.

Are you less wise with the greater part of your money than with the smaller share?

You can select the daiiy products you buy as carefully as your most conservative investments. In every store you'll find products that you know well. Friendly names that have stood for first quality many years. Names of products that millions of people have bought, and bought again and again. Products that these people, by their steady patronage, have approved from coast to coast.

They are the advertised products. They must be full value—first quality, or they couldn't satisfy so many millions of people year after year!

The other products you see are strangers. You don't know them. Few people do. They may be good—they may not. No manufacturer holds them up to the pitiless light of publicity. They are just there . . . hopelessly unknown—the "speculations" of the world of merchandise.

POLITICAL INDIGNATION

THE Duluth Herald takes up consideration of the McNary-Haugen bill and says there is no surprise in Coolidge's veto, and then presents its arguments as to why farm relief has failed. The editorial reads:

President Coolidge vetoed the McNary-Haugen bill because it contained a price-fixing and price-boosting device in its equalization fee.

He does not believe that the problem of a farm-product surplus can be solved by tempting growers through guaranteed prices to make the surplus larger. That being so, it was his duty to veto this plan, and he could not honestly do otherwise.

There is no surprise in this veto. It was known when the bill was introduced with the equalization fee in it that it would be vetoed if it passed. It was known when the bill was being debated in both houses. It was known when it was passed. And now it has happened, and all efforts for farm relief at this session are a failure. Passage over the veto is impossible, since it requires two-thirds of the whole congress, not merely two-thirds of those voting.

Why has farm relief failed?

Politicians, affecting a mighty indignation for political effect, including a Minnesota Democratic candidate for senator who forgets that he does not know how Al Smith stands on this or any other national issue, say that it is because the president vetoed this bill.

The fact is that farm relief has failed because congress, and especially those in congress and out of it who pretend to be the farmer's great friends, chose to waste their time and energies on a measure which they knew it was impossible to pass, instead of trying to work out a measure that would help and that could be made a law.

The farmer may be in need of relief; he has been, truly enough, though his conditions are getting better fast. He may or may not believe in the McNary-Haugen formula as his sole hope of salvation. But political purposes have largely inspired the origin and history of this measure, and political purposes largely inspire the indignation which greets the veto.

Those who didn't want any real farm relief at this session because it would rob Lowden and Dawes of all their campaign thunder, leaving them without an issue, no doubt are loudest of all in their indignant outcries.

CONFIDENTIAL COMMUNICATIONS

UNDER the laws of all the states communications made in professional confidence cannot be disclosed in evidence by the person to whom they were made without the consent of the person making them.

This statute prevents doctors, clergymen and attorneys from testifying to what patients, penitents or clients have told them in a confidential way or from testifying from facts found out by chance through professional relation.

A United States circuit court of appeals had this question up recently in an Iowa case. A patient died in a hospital, and one of the hospital staff, who had not treated the patient, took part in making an autopsy on the dead body. Heirs of the deceased had sued an accident insurance company, and the company defended on the ground that death was not caused by accident.

The insurance company offered to prove by the hospital physician that death was not caused by an exterior accident, but was the result of certain internal conditions disclosed by the autopsy. The Iowa judge held that the hospital authority could not testify as to the facts he claimed to have found in the autopsy.

But the Federal judges rule just the other way and they have the last guess. They point out that a dead man is not a patient. No patient had disclosed anything to the proposed witness. He made his discoveries through an examination of a dead body. It was his right and duty to testify if called up, the court rules.

The court points out, however, that if the doctor who had been the physician of the deceased had made the autopsy, he could not testify so as to betray any confidence.

This ruling seems reasonable. Assuming that a doctor's knowledge comes only from an autopsy in no way growing out of and not connected with confidential relations, he should be allowed to testify. If the autopsy came about through pre-existing confidential relations, and tended to betray them, the facts it disclosed should be as sacred as verbal communications during life.

SOCIAL UNREST AND EVOLUTION

IF universities, art galleries and churches arouse social unrest, as stated by Dr. Charles Stelzle of New York, in Minneapolis Tuesday, then social unrest is truly one of the greatest liberating forces which can affect mankind.

Social unrest, applied in its wide sense by Dr. Stelzle, is not merely the squabbling between labor and capital or the anti-capitalistic movement which has made such a mark on Russia. While encompassing these things, it means much more than this narrow though commonly applied meaning of the term. By Dr. Stelzle's implied definition, social unrest is mankind's perpetual urge to improve itself and to make life more livable on this planet.

Turn back history's pages and regard those countries and civilizations where education and art were reserved for an oligarchy of the few, where religion for the masses was little more than pagan superstitution. There you will find few signs of "social unrest" and there also you will find populations as ignorant as they were oppressed, living an existence little above the animal plane.

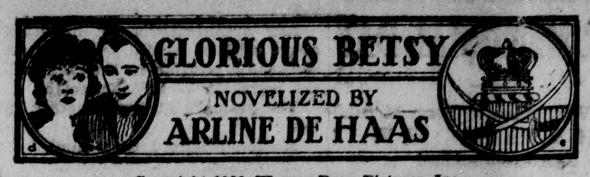

The struggle of the great majority, once the light of learning gave them a glimpse of higher things, has been to lift themselves above the mire and naturally it has not been accomplished without opposition from despots and tyrants who profited by their submission.

If art galleries breed social unrest, if fine public schools and churches teach man to aspire to something beyond himself, they are contributing to the greatest of causes—the continuing evolution of man to a higher and better goal.—Minneapolis Star.

THE SCHOOL VOTE

EVERY proposition submitted at the school election carried except the bond issue for the north side school. There a regulation of the state investment board proved an obstacle, as it called for a majority of all the votes cast.

The proposition called for a bond issue to the State of Minnesota and not in the open market.

SYNOPSIS

Captain Jerome Bonaparte, brother of Napoleon and his ambassador to America, msquerades as a tutor and wins the love of the bewitching Betsy Patterson. At a banquet given in her home his identity is revealed and they become publicly betrothed. Jerome's aides fear the consequences of his engagement. They take Jerome aside and warn him against upsetting the Emperor's plans. Jerome marries Betsy and they sail for France. When they arrive in port Betsy is not allowed to land. A messenger arrives on the boat summoning Jerome to Napoleon's presence.

CHAPTER XIII—Continued

"Oh, Jerome, I'm afraid." She clung to him, her eyes misty with tears. "I wouldn't let the others know, but I'm afraid of Napoleon." She placed her hand over his mouth silencing him. "Ah, but I must talk. I can't help it. A moment ago when that man St. Pierre was here I was cold with terror. A feeling crept into my heart that was almost like a prophesy that—that he, your brother, was going to take you away from me. Oh, he is so powerful, so relentless. Before the others I made believe I had no fears, but it wasn't true, Jerome, it wasn't true. I was just pretending. I'm afraid!" Her head dropped on Jerome's shoulder.

"Do you not trust me, cherie?" he questioned, kissing the red curls

"I love you, Jerome, but you must remember," she lifted her head and looked up into Jerome's face, "that no harm or sorrow must come to you through my love. You must remember I don't hold you."

"Ah, but your heart is dreadfully easily mended," she pulled away from him, stifling the fear that was catching in sudden shooting pains at her breast. "And what of my heart? What do you think it makes me feel to be called 'Mademoiselle' in that Bonaparte sort of way? And you're unjust, too. Didn't I love you when I thought you were only a tutor, and didn't I promise to marry you before I even knew that you were the brother of the First Consul of France—let alone the Emperor? And I love you now, more every moment. Deep in my heart of hearts you're nestling, Jerome, you'll be there forever, and when forever is over you'll still be there."

"Monsieur Dufresne makes the cast off." St. Pierre thrust his head up over the railing.

"Yes, yes, of course, you must go—you must go, Jerome," Betsy pushed her laggard husband towards the side of the vessel.

"Betty, if you do not believe that love is stronger than anything else in the world I will not go." Jerome caught her in his arms once more, straining her to him.

"You must see how we always differ," she laughed, but her laughter was feigned. "You say you won't go, and I say you will. Oh, dear, I know we are going to fight scandalously when you return."

"But you must promise me never to have any fear again." Jerome kissed her lingeringly. "Promise me?"

"I promise. I won't be afraid any more. Fate's a darling and I know she has nothing but dear, adorable things in store for Betsy Patterson. Good-bye, my darling, or perhaps we should say au revoir." She kissed him, and pushed him from her.

CHAPTER XIV

Betsy stood swaying slightly, her eyes tight shut to close out the figure of her departing husband, her hands clenched tight until the knuckles of the pink-tipped fingers stood out raw and white. She choked back a sob and turned to run blindly into her cabin. But even as Jerome stepped over the railing and on to the ladder there came a call that halted his retreat and brought Betsy to sudden attention.

"Throw a line! The Emperor would board you!" The voice came from below as the sound of a body mounting along the side of the ship could be heard. The order brought all deck-hands to attention; the captain came running from below.

Framed in the door of her cabin Betsy stood, her wide eyes staring. "The Emperor!" she breathed.

Over the side of the vessel stepped the muffled figure that had been seated in the boat below. Behind him marched two soldiers. From beneath the cocked hat, gleaming eyes glanced hastily over the deck and then rested on Betsy. For an instant the girl gasped, fascinated at the sight of the man she had dreamed of meeting, but even the sudden shock of this long waited for encounter could not take from her her presence of mind. She curtsied low and rose, smiling that winning smile that had brought the beaux of America to her feet. It was her one chance to win over the Emperor and she intended to make the most of it.

BOND ISSUE VOTE HELD INSUFFICIENT

Fourth Proposition of Brainerd School Election, $100,000 Bond Issue, Fails to Carry

COVERS NORTH SIDE SCHOOL

Attorney General G. A. Youngquist Makes Ruling Late on Friday Afternoon

Failure of enough persons to vote on the issue after they had gone to the polls resulted in a ruling late Friday by Attorney General G. A. Youngquist that Brainerd's recent election failed to carry a $100,000 bond issue proposal.

Four proposals were voted on. One approved a plan to erect a $425,000 senior junior high school, with the second approving a bond issue of $150,000 for this purpose to be arranged as a loan from state trust funds.

The third proposal approved was for a $225,000 junior high school to be erected on block 82. The fourth was a $100,000 bond issue for this project. It was the last proposal which failed to carry, although 1,400 voted for it and 1,146 against.

It did not carry because a provision of law for state loans requires that a majority of the vote cast at the election must favor it. The total vote cast was 2,972, but only 1,400 voted affirmatively on that bond proposal.

The opinion was given to D. H. Fullerton, city and school district attorney at Brainerd.

At the special meeting provided by law for the canvass of the votes of the Wednesday school election, the school board last night canvassed the vote of each of the four propositions in order and declared their findings as follows:

Proposition No. 1 authorizing a $425,000 school building on the south side and Proposition No. 3 authorizing a $225,000 building on the north side, carried, each having received a majority of the votes cast on the questions submitted.

The vote on Proposition No. 1 was 2,575 yes and 190 no. On Proposition No. 3 the vote was 1,407 yes and 1,147 no.

Proposition No. 2 authorizing a $150,000 bond issue for the south side school was declared carried, having received a majority of all the votes cast. The vote was 1,840 yes and 788 no.

Proposition No. 4 was embodied in this form, as declaratory of the result of the vote, the motion having been prepared by the attorneys of the school district:

Whereas there was a total vote cast of 2,972 at said special meeting and election and that there was 1,400 votes cast in favor of question No. 4 and 1,146 votes cast against said proposition and it therefore appearing that there was a majority of 256 votes, of the number cast on this proposition but not a majority of the total number of votes cast at said election and according to an opinion and ruling of the assistant attorney general now on file with this Board requiring a majority of the total vote cast, on motion of Drexler and Holvick and duly carried, Question No. 4, that is, that the bonds of the Brainerd school district of Crow Wing county, Minn., be issued to the State of Minnesota in the aggregate amount of $100,000, bearing interest at the rate of four per cent per annum, the proceeds thereof to be used to purchase the site and erect and equip a school house on site known as the Fill Site, is hereby certified and declared to be not carried.

PASSES BOGUS CHECK

Merchants Warned to Make Certain Traveller's Checks Are O. K.

Merchants of Brainerd are warned to not accept traveller's checks unless positive they are issued by legitimate banking establishments. They may be accepted on approval of their bankers.

The warning comes as a result of the first bogus traveller's check passed in the county this season. The check was passed recently at Pequot for the amount of $20, and was a check of the United Bankers Association issued by Bankers National bank of Indianapolis. Bank officials here today announced that no such legitimate establishments existed.

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC

I see by last night's paper Mr. Louis Eide doesn't care to be responsible for any bills contracted by me.

He never has been responsible for any bills contracted by him or me. The reason is that he never intended to pay any of the people that were kind enough to give us credit. These are old bills that he owes and which he never intends to pay as he told me he never would pay them.

Mr. Prosser had many friends in Brainerd who regret to hear of his demise.

500 ATTEND MEN'S CLUB PIKE SUPPER

Annual Event of Bethlehem Lutheran Club Again Scores Great Success

DEMONSTRATE COOKING ART

Men Don Aprons and Prove to Citizens Capability as Efficient Waiters

Demonstrating the ability to prepare and serve the fish as well as catch them, members of the Men's club of the Bethlehem Lutheran church donned aprons, rolled up their sleeves, and prepared to serve 500 men and women who came to partake of the pike supper last evening at the church.

And those who had the pleasure to attend heartily endorsed the men as capable chefs and efficient waiters. The supper is an annual event in the church.

The menu consisted of steaked golden pike with butter dressing, strips of meaty bacon, steaming hot potatoes, cake, and coffee.

William Olson supervised in the kitchen in the capacity of chef assisted by Andrew Holum, Ole Steno, John Hoston, Henry Anderson, John Peterson, Andrew Johnson, Ole Antonson, Oscar Erickson, Chris Peterson.

O. A. Peterson was head of the dining room. John M. Bye was in charge of the taking of tickets. The following served: Richard Kunde, Ole D. Larson, M. J. Reis, C. N. Erickson, Theodore Newgard, Ole Skillestad, William Handeland, Lewis Handeland, Carl Soderman, Peter Swenson, H. P. Kelly.

S. E. Engbretson was in charge of the steaking of the fish assisted by Theodore Newgard and A. Gilbertson.

MRS. F. M. HAGBERG CLAIMED BY DEATH

Passed Away at Local Hospital Yesterday at Age of 43 Years

WAS GRADUATE NURSE

Survived by Husband and Four Children; Funeral Arrangements Not Complete

Mrs. May Hagberg, wife of F. M. Hagberg, member of the Brainerd Board of Education, gave the supreme sacrifice for her new born child yesterday afternoon at the St. Joseph's hospital. The child today was reported well.

Mrs. Hagberg was 43 years old, well known in the city, and active in St. Francis church affairs. Her death is regretted by her large circle of friends.

Previous to her marriage in November 15, 1919, she devoted her life to the care of the sick. She graduated from a nurses training school at Grand Forks, N. D., and as a registered nurse worked in Minnesota.

She was born in East Grand Forks, Minn., on May 22, 1884.

Surviving besides her husband are four children, Jean, Mary, Katherine and an infant daughter; her mother, Mrs. Anna Friedsam, of Portland, Ore.; three sisters, Miss Barbara Friedsam, Brainerd, Mrs. Charles Holmes, of Roseville, Calif., and Sister M. Rosailie, O. S. B., of Duluth and one brother, R. A. Friedsam, of Toledo, Ohio.

Funeral arrangements were to be completed this afternoon.

BRAINERD 25 YEARS AGO

From the Daily Dispatch

May 25, 1903

Two young men of prominent families in the city were out to Gull Lake yesterday and capsized a boat and were precipitated into the water. Both boys came near drowning and to hear the plea this morning that their names should not be published would make anyone shed crocodile tears.

Mrs. Mose Derocher left for Park Rapids this afternoon for a visit with her daughter for a short time.

The Misses Burgoyne and Gertrude McLaughlin and Messrs. Will Koop and H. W. Isham went to Sylvan Lake yesterday to spend the day.

The members of the Elks' baseball team met at the Athletic park this morning and Joe Howe was selected captain and manager. New suits are to be ordered and there will be a series of good games arranged this summer.

Brainerd had one of her teams at Aitkin yesterday. The game stood 5 to 3 in favor of Brainerd and it must have been a good game for there were ten innings played.

Judge Spooner received a wire this morning stating that the Minnesota & International railway cut the passenger rates to three cents a mile taking effect July 1.

May 26, 1903

The following marriage licenses were issued by Clerk of Court W. A. M. Johnstone: Henry Lieske to Maud Roberts; Henry Edwards to Jennie M. Peterson.

Dr. F. H. Stewart, of Minneapolis, who has been in the city for several days looking over the situation, has decided to locate here permanently. He has taken a suite of rooms in the Northern Pacific bank building and will open for business in a few days.

Competent men stenographers are being sought by the railway managers. They are susceptible to promotion to positions of greater importance which could not be occupied by women. This policy of advancement is a great barrier to the employment of women as shorthand clerks.

The state high school examinations are being held at the Washington school building. This is a regular annual examination which all high school and eighth grade pupils have to take. There are about two hundred and fifty pupils taking the examinations.

Work of grading for the new side track from the M. & I. landing track to the new Northwestern Paper Company pulp mill has commenced.

YOO HOO! SKINNY! ELEPHANTS COMING!

First Car of Christy Brothers Circus Arrives to Arrange for Show

CIRCUS HERE JUNE 8

This Season's Show Fully up to High Standard Maintained

"They are here," those fellows that bring joy to every little chap's heart and to his "old Man" also, if he would only tell the truth.

Early yesterday morning Advertising Car No. 1 of the Christy Brothers Circus arrived here, and the crew of bannermen, lithographers, and billposters started to cover the city with the vari-colored posters announcing coming of the first circus of the season on Friday, June 8.

This season's show will be up to the standard always maintained by the Christy Bros. Circus, and will offer many new and varied acts and features. Walter McCorkhill the manager of the car, was enthusiastic about this production, saying it was one of the most beautiful and lavish of all circus performances.

The Christy Bros. Circus is the only circus of its magnitude that still retains the parade feature of circus day. Every man, woman and child with the show participates, and all the ring stock are in line, with all the cages open to view. There are five bands stationed just the proper distance apart to give a continuous fanfare.

YOUNG BRAINERD

By W. W. HARTLEY

NOTE—Crow Wing County Historical Society welcomes reminiscences of early days. Send same to S. R. Adair, president, or to L. B. Kinder, historian.

"When (in 1871) the county seat was removed to Brainerd, the several county officials appointed W. W. Hartley, deputy sheriff, deputy auditor, deputy treasurer, deputy register of deeds—each official had to be represented at the county seat, since he did not care to move there himself. Within a year the business had grown to such an extent that Mr. Hartley resigned his position as manager of the Peake and Wakefield store and devoted full time to his multitudinous official duties."

W. W. Hartley

"County Auditor, Judge of Probate, and Deputy Clerk of District Court. Is prepared to issue naturalization papers, marriage licenses, and will solemnize marriages. Takes acknowledgements of deeds, etc. Special attention given to paying taxes and to Land Commission Business in the Counties og Crow Wing, Cass, Wadena, Itasca, and Aitkin."
—Ingolf Dillan in "Brainerd's Half Century."

One Sunday morning in January, 1872, Morris C. Russell appeared in front of the postoffice, at Hills' store, among the crowd gathered to get their mail, and with note book and pencil in hand solicited subscriptions for a Brainerd paper that he proposed to start provided he received sufficient engouragement. A newspaper was the one thing, above all else that Brainerd folks wanted just then and everybody subscribed and on February 10, 1872, the Brainerd Tribune was born and taken into the bosom of every family in town. The office and plant were destroyed by fire, as stated above, but did not miss an issue. A new plant was installed in a board shanty on the corner of Front and Broadway and the Tribune was out on time the next week, as usual. On May 1, 1875, I bought the paper and continued its publication until 1881, when I sold to George S. Canfield, from the Cincinnatti Commercial Gazette, who later sold to A. J. Halsted. During the political campaign of 1872 I published a daily paper, called the Greeley Wave, supporting the presidential ticket indicated by its name, but primarily in the interest of our local ticket.

"Burke and his Bear" were among the points of interest in Brainerd in these days, and I often liken the Kaiser to the bear. Burke kept a saloon on Fourth street, and a large black bear tied to a tree in front of his door, an open challenge to all the dogs in town, was a prime feature of the place. Burke made it his business to work up fights with the dogs to bring the crowds to his bar, and the bear made it his business to swipe all the dogs that came. His back to the tree, he never moved off his haunches and always won, swiping dogs in front and rear and in every direction, until one day, when Burke was not looking Pete Branigan cut off the bear's toe nails and then set his dogs on and licked the stuffin out of the bear. It was always interesting to watch the dogs. They always came in a crowd and divided, attacking the bear on all sides at once. And there was a difference in dogs, some would dig in and fight regardless of consequences, while others ran around out of reach of the bear and barked, until some one pushed them in and made them fight. The bear paid no attention to the barking dogs but swiped the fighters.

The parish directory of St. Paul's church at Brainerd, for 1917-18, relating some early history of Brainerd, makes the statement that in 1871, 'in the principal store in the town there stood inside the door an open barrel of whiskey with a dipper in it, for anyone to help themselves." I lived in Brainerd continuously from September 1, 1871 to 1889, and was there many times before I went there to live. I was in politics a good deal and always around with the boys and never passed anything up like that, but I never saw or heard of this before. The store of H. A. Hills & Co., corner of Front and 4th streets, was clearly the largest store in Brainerd, did the largest mercantile business, besides private banking, express office, postoffice, and sold liquors wholesale and retail, and I assume is the store referred to. I was in Hills' store several times almost every day, went there for my mail when the mails arrived, but never saw or heard of whiskey or any other liquor being free in that or any other store, and no other store, outside the saloons even sold liquor. The most probable solution is that some one played a joke on the preacher.

Everybody, everywhere, knew about the hanging of the Indians at Brainerd, but some of the inside history never saw print and a good many of the uninformed were always doubtful about their guilt, hence I see no objection at this remote date, to telling some of the circumstances that I knew about. As was generally known, Miss McArthur, daughter of David McArthur, one of the county commissioners mentioned above, disappeared one morning on her way to visit friends in Crow Wng and never was seen again. Exhaustive search for months failed to discover the slightest clue, until a young Indian woman reported to the county attorney that she overheard the two young Indians who were afterward hanged, disputing, in a drunken row, as to which of them struck the blow that killed the girl. Each disclaimed it and insisted that the other did it. After considerable search they were apprehended and placed in the Brainerd jail, when various methods were tried to induce them to confess or inform on the other, even promising immunity to the one who told the correct story and aided in finding the remains, but they only persisted in sullen denials. There was no doubt of their guilt in the minds of those who heard the Indian girl's story, but it was quite as apparent that they could not be convicted or even held much longer in detenue without further evidence. Finally a number of citizens, whose names if given would be ample guarantee of their integrity and high standing in the community, with an interpreter of equal high standing, who still lives and will verify this account, came together to discuss plans with the county attorney, sheriff and clerk of the court, resulting in procuring a rig and a rope and driving to the jail after midnight, in the absence of the sheriff, and, finding the keys as pre-arranged, took the prisoners out, one at a time, a couple of miles southeast of town, where the rope was thrown over a limb and about his neck in a hangman's knot and he was told that he was to be hung then and there unless he confessed and took us to the remains. Refusing he was given time to pray and then strung up until unconscious, when he was let down and restored and given another chance. This was repeated until it became evident that nothing could move him, when the other was brought out, and the process repeated. When restored to consciousness after the first hanging the second one broke down and told the story of the brutal murder and disposition of the body, which he said was covered with dead leaves and branches under a clump of thick bushes and agreed to go with us and show us the place. He said they were both drunk and excused killing her by saying she struck him and made him angry, besides, they feared if they let her go she would tell of their outrages. His account confirmed the story of the Indian girl so completely that it removed all possible doubt. We then drove as he directed, taking an old road leading from the highway to a place in the timber a couple of miles or so above Crow Wing, near the river bank, where he began searching for the spot, but as daylight appeared his courage seemed to be restored and he told us he had lied to escape being killed, that they did not see the girl or know anything about her disappearance and that the Indian girl had lied through jealousy. He was finally taken back to jail and the other prisoner was taken out and told that his partner had told the whole story, relating some of the details, but nothing we could say or do moved him from his sullen silence and gruff denials. The following Sunday a party of us drove to the place we had been led to and finally discovered the remains, just as he had told us, under a bunch of bushes but there was very little left besides bones and buttons and in one spot about a foot square, under where the body had decomposed, was found a piece of plaid black and white cloth with one button still on it, that was readily recognized by Mrs. McArthur as a part of her daughter's underwear. The buttons found nearby were also readily recognized. The bones were gathered and taken to town where physicians said they were plainly bones of a yung girl and they even found the deformed bone of her crippled limb. With this accumulation of evidence the county attorney began preparing to bring them to trial, when, unheralded and as if by magic, a multitude of determined men suddenly filled the streets, marching silently to the jail.

Funeral arrangements were to be completed this afternoon.

BRAINERD 25 YEARS AGO

From the Daily Dispatch

May 25, 1903

Two young men of prominent families in the city were out to Gull Lake yesterday and capsized a boat and were precipitated into the water. Both boys came near drowning and to hear the plea this morning that their names should not be published would make anyone shed crocodile tears.

Mrs. Mose Derocher left for Park Rapids this afternoon for a visit with her daughter for a short time.

The Misses Burgoyne and Gertrude McLaughlin and Messrs. Will Koop and H. W. Isham went to Sylvan Lake yesterday to spend the day.

The members of the Elks' baseball team met at the Athletic park this morning and Joe Howe was selected captain and manager. New suits are to be ordered and there will be a series of good games arranged this summer.

Brainerd had one of her teams at Aitkin yesterday. The game stood 5 to 3 in favor of Brainerd and it must have been a good game for there were ten innings played.

Judge Spooner received a wire this morning stating that the Minnesota & International railway cut the passenger rates to three cents a mile taking effect July 1.

May 26, 1903

The following marriage licenses were issued by Clerk of Court W. A. M. Johnstone: Henry Lieske to Maud Roberts; Henry Edwards to Jennie M. Peterson.

Dr. F. H. Stewart, of Minneapolis, who has been in the city for several days looking over the situation, has decided to locate here permanently. He has taken a suite of rooms in the Northern Pacific bank building and will open for business in a few days.

Competent men stenographers are being sought by the railway managers. They are susceptible to promotion to positions of greater importance which could not be occupied by women. This policy of advancement is a great barrier to the employment of women as shorthand clerks.

The state high school examinations are being held at the Washington school building. This is a regular annual examination which all high school and eighth grade pupils have to take. There are about two hundred and fifty pupils taking the examinations.

Work of grading for the new side track from the M. & I. landing track to the new Northwestern Paper Company pulp mill has commenced.

RIVERS AND HARBORS BILL CARRIES LARGE APPROPRIATION

Washington, May 26.—(U.P.)—A total of $48,846,415 for 84 projects throughout the country is provided in the rivers and harbors bill reported to the house today by the rivers and harbors committee. The measure will lay over until next session for action.

First Car of Christy Brothers Circus Arrives to Arrange for Show

CIRCUS HERE JUNE 8

This Season's Show Fully up to High Standard Maintained

"They are here," those fellows that bring joy to every little chap's heart and to his "old Man" also, if he would only tell the truth.

Early yesterday morning Advertising Car No. 1 of the Christy Brothers Circus arrived here, and the crew of bannermen, lithographers, and billposters started to cover the city with the vari-colored posters announcing coming of the first circus of the season on Friday, June 8.

This season's show will be up to the standard always maintained by the Christy Bros. Circus, and will offer many new and varied acts and features. Walter McCorkhill the manager of the car, was enthusiastic about this production, saying it was one of the most beautiful and lavish of all circus performances.

The Christy Brps. Circus is the only circus of its magnitude that still retains the parade feature of circus day. Every man, woman and child with the show participates, and all the ring stock are in line, with all the cages open to view. There are five bands stationed just the proper distance apart to give a continuous fanfare.

YOUNG BRAINERD

By W. W. HARTLEY

NOTE—Crow Wing County Historical Society welcomes reminiscences of early days. Send same to S. R. Adair, president, or to L. B. Kinder, historian.

"When (in 1871) the county seat was removed to Brainerd, the several county officials appointed W. W. Hartley, deputy sheriff, deputy auditor, deputy treasurer, deputy register of deeds—each official had to be represented at the county seat, since he did not care to move there himself. Within a year the business had grown to such an extent that Mr. Hartley resigned his position as manager of the Peake and Wakefield store and devoted full time to his multitudinous official duties."

W. W. Hartley

"County Auditor, Judge of Probate, and Deputy Clerk of District Court. Is prepared to issue naturalization papers, marriage licenses, and will solemnize marriages. Takes acknowledgements of deeds, etc. Special attention given to paying taxes and to Land Commission Business in the Counties og Crow Wing, Cass, Wadena, Itasca, and Aitkin."
—Ingolf Dillan in "Brainerd's Half Century."

One Sunday morning in January, 1872, Morris C. Russell appeared in front of the postoffice, at Hills' store, among the crowd gathered to get their mail, and with note book and pencil in hand solicited subscriptions for a Brainerd paper that he proposed to start provided he received sufficient engouragement. A newspaper was the one thing, above all else that Brainerd folks wanted just then and everybody subscribed and on February 10, 1872, the Brainerd Tribune was born and taken into the bosom of every family in town. The office and plant were destroyed by fire, as stated above, but did not miss an issue. A new plant was installed in a board shanty on the corner of Front and Broadway and the Tribune was out on time the next week, as usual. On May 1, 1875, I bought the paper and continued its publication until 1881, when I sold to George S. Canfield, from the Cincinnatti Commercial Gazette, who later sold to A. J. Halsted. During the political campaign of 1872 I published a daily paper, called the Greeley Wave, supporting the presidential ticket indicated by its name, but primarily in the interest of our local ticket.

"Burke and his Bear" were among the points of interest in Brainerd in these days, and I often liken the Kaiser to the bear. Burke kept a saloon on Fourth street, and a large black bear tied to a tree in front of his door, an open challenge to all the dogs in town, was a prime feature of the place. Burke made it his business to work up fights with the dogs to bring the crowds to his bar, and the bear made it his business to swipe all the dogs that came. His back to the tree, he never moved off his haunches and always won, swiping dogs in front and rear and in every direction, until one day, when Burke was not looking Pete Branigan cut off the bear's toe nails and then set his dogs on and licked the stuffin out of the bear. It was always interesting to watch the dogs. They always came in a crowd and divided, attacking the bear on all sides at once. And there was a difference in dogs, some would dig in and fight regardless of consequences, while others ran around out of reach of the bear and barked, until some one pushed them in and made them fight. The bear paid no attention to the barking dogs but swiped the fighters.

The parish directory of St. Paul's church at Brainerd, for 1917-18, relating some early history of Brainerd, makes the statement that in 1871, 'in the principal store in the town there stood inside the door an open barrel of whiskey with a dipper in it, for anyone to help themselves." I lived in Brainerd continuously from September 1, 1871 to 1889, and was there many times before I went there to live. I was in politics a good deal and always around with the boys and never passed anything up like that, but I never saw or heard of this before. The store of H. A. Hills & Co., corner of Front and 4th streets, was clearly the largest store in Brainerd, did the largest mercantile business, besides private banking, express office, postoffice, and sold liquors wholesale and retail, and I assume is the store referred to. I was in Hills' store several times almost every day, went there for my mail when the mails arrived, but never saw or heard of whiskey or any other liquor being free in that or any other store, and no other store, outside the saloons even sold liquor. The most probable solution is that some one played a joke on the preacher.

Everybody, everywhere, knew about the hanging of the Indians at Brainerd, but some of the inside history never saw print and a good many of the uninformed were always doubtful about their guilt, hence I see no objection at this remote date, to telling some of the circumstances that I knew about. As was generally known, Miss McArthur, daughter of David McArthur, one of the county commissioners mentioned above, disappeared one morning on her way to visit friends in Crow Wng and never was seen again. Exhaustive search for months failed to discover the slightest clue, until a young Indian woman reported to the county attorney that she overheard the two young Indians who were afterward hanged, disputing, in a drunken row, as to which of them struck the blow that killed the girl. Each disclaimed it and insisted that the other did it. After considerable search they were apprehended and placed in the Brainerd jail, when various methods were tried to induce them to confess or inform on the other, even promising immunity to the one who told the correct story and aided in finding the remains, but they only persisted in sullen denials. There was no doubt of their guilt in the minds of those who heard the Indian girl's story, but it was quite as apparent that they could not be convicted or even held much longer in detenue without further evidence. Finally a number of citizens, whose names if given would be ample guarantee of their integrity and high standing in the community, with an interpreter of equal high standing, who still lives and will verify this account, came together to discuss plans with the county attorney, sheriff and clerk of the court, resulting in procuring a rig and a rope and driving to the jail after midnight, in the absence of the sheriff, and, finding the keys as pre-arranged, took the prisoners out, one at a time, a couple of miles southeast of town, where the rope was thrown over a limb and about his neck in a hangman's knot and he was told that he was to be hung then and there unless he confessed and took us to the remains. Refusing he was given time to pray and then strung up until unconscious, when he was let down and restored and given another chance. This was repeated until it became evident that nothing could move him, when the other was brought out, and the process repeated. When restored to consciousness after the first hanging the second one broke down and told the story of the brutal murder and disposition of the body, which he said was covered with dead leaves and branches under a clump of thick bushes and agreed to go with us and show us the place. He said they were both drunk and excused killing her by saying she struck him and made him angry, besides, they feared if they let her go she would tell of their outrages. His account confirmed the story of the Indian girl so completely that it removed all possible doubt. We then drove as he directed, taking an old road leading from the highway to a place in the timber a couple of miles or so above Crow Wing, near the river bank, where he began searching for the spot, but as daylight appeared his courage seemed to be restored and he told us he had lied to escape being killed, that they did not see the girl or know anything about her disappearance and that the Indian girl had lied through jealousy. He was finally taken back to jail and the other prisoner was taken out and told that his partner had told the whole story, relating some of the details, but nothing we could say or do moved him from his sullen silence and gruff denials. The following Sunday a party of us drove to the place we had been led to and finally discovered the remains, just as he had told us, under a bunch of bushes but there was very little left besides bones and buttons and in one spot about a foot square, under where the body had decomposed, was found a piece of plaid black and white cloth with one buttou still on it, that was readily recognized by Mrs. McArthur as a part of her daughter's underwear. The buttons found nearby were also readily recognized. The bones were gathered and taken to town where physicians said they were plainly bones of a yung girl and they even found the deformed bone of her crippled limb. With this accumulation of evidence the county attorney began preparing to bring them to trial, when, unheralded and as if by magic, a multitude of determined men suddenly filled the streets, marching silently to the jail.

PYLE CROSS COUNTRY RACE ENDS TODAY

FINISH IS FORECAST, PAYNE LEADING PACK

CLAREMONT, OKLAHOMA YOUTH, ABOUT TO GAIN $25,000 CASH PRIZE

JOHN SALO, CLINCHING HOLD ON SECOND PLACE, $10,000 PRIZE

By JAMES M. POWERS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Passaic, N. J., May 26. — New York's proud skyline took on the appearance of a dollar sign today so far as one small group of sun browned, bewhiskered and wearied men was concerned.

The same proud skyline, reaching up across the river from the Jersey shore, was wound around in a way that spelled rest for a complete group of 55 men, including the group that saw the dollar sign sticking out of the towering skyscrapers.

For C. C. Pyle's trans-continental derby was just about at an end. This afternoon 55 runners will jog over to Weehawken, ferry across to New York, pace up to Madison Square Garden and there end a trip of more than 3,000 miles.

Many are going to finish just for the glory's sake and to help C. C. Pyle make a great big show in New York. But young curly haired Andy Payne, John Salo and a few others are going to run into Madison Square Garden to claim $48,500 that Pyle promised. He has reassured them they will receive the money, and the runners were confident this morning.

"The runners need not worry about their money," Pyle said. 'There have been only a few grievances and they didn't mean much. One complainer was a chap in 47th place, but he wouldn't lose even if the money wasn't available."

That assurance cheered those who will participate in the prizes of this trans-continental jaunt.

"I could have packed Yankee stadium," he mentioned, just to indicate how New York is going to take to this big windup.

This morning he moved his freaks —the sideshow he carried along as a counter attraction to the long distance runners—into New York, so they could be set up at Madison Square Garden. Mud spattered training cars were sent over so the Garden crowd could look at them. When the runners arrive this evening, probably about 8:30 P. M., he will show them to the crowd individually and then send each one off on a 200 lap sprint.

Then, too, Pyle already is looking ahead.

Yesterday John Salo led the pack in their run from Suffern, N. Y. Passaic was Salo's home town and the crowd turned out in great numbers. However, winning the heat merely clinched second place for Salo because Andy Payne holds a 16 hours, 17 minutes and 35 seconds lead, and only a broken leg or utter collapse can beat the Claremore, Okla., youth out of first place.

The way the race likely will end, and the money each of the leaders will receive, follows:

1—Andrey Payne, Claremore, Okla. ..... $25,000
2—John Salo, Passaic, N. J. ..... $10,000
3—Philip Granville, Hamilton, Ont. ..... $ 5,000
4—Mike Joyce, Cleveland.... $ 2,500
5—Giusto Umek, Trieste, Italy ..... $ 1,000
6—William Kerr, Minneapolis ..... $ 1,000
7—Eddie Gardner, Seattle.. $ 1,000
8—Louis Perella, Albany, N. Y. ..... $ 1,000
9—Frank Von Flue, Kerman, Calif. ..... $ 1,000
10—John Cronick, Saskatoon, Sask. ..... $ 1,000

JAPAN REPLIES TO AMERICAN ANTI-WAR PACT

Washington, May 26. — (U.P.)— Japan replied tday to the American anti-war treaty proposals, agreeing to participate in negotiations among six powers for such a treaty.

The reply was an acceptance of the American draft. The Japanese pointed out that their rights of self-defense and their commitments under existing international agreements must be protected in any pact they sign, but suggested that these provisions need not be written into the treaty.

CANOE MARATHON RACE IN WINDUP AT MINNEAPOLIS

FINAL LAP BEGAN AT ANOKA AT 9 A. M., LUNCH AT COON CREEK

CANOES EXPECTED TO CROSS FINISH LINE AT 2:30 P. M.

Minneapolis, May 26. — (UP) — Minnesota's Diamond Jubilee celebration will be officially opened today when 22 canoeists who began a marathon race at the headwaters of the Mississippi, two weeks ago finish their race here.

The final lap of the race began from Anoka at 9 A. M. today and allowing a stop for lunch at Coon Creek the canoes should cross the finish line at 2:30 P. M. Fast time is expected to be made in the last leg as the paddlers race for extra prizes.

Ben Tibbetts and Bill Reynolds, Ballclub, with a total elapsed time of 78 hours and 35 minutes, lead their nearest competitors, Jim and Tom Tibbetts, Bemidji, by 41 minutes.

Harry Anderson and Fred Hanson, Mankato, held third place as the morning drive started.

"Forestry Week"

In 1920, the idea of devoting a week annually to an educational campaign in the interest of forests originated in the Pacific Northwest. At first this week was called "Forest Protection week." In 1921, President Harding brought the federal government behind the idea and issued a proclamation. Since that time such a week has been observed each year.

SOUTH SIDE GO ON HITTING SPREE; GAME CALLED

CHALK UP 12 RUNS IN TWO INNINGS TO "Y'S" TWO; DARKNESS ENDS GAME

ONE-SIDED GAME FAILS TO GO FULL DISTANCE; FIRST TWO INNINGS WERE LONG

Darkness gave the Y. M. C. A. a new lease on the ball game with the South Side last evening when after playing only three innings during which time the S. S. piled up a count of 12 to 2, the game was called.

The South Siders opened the game by scoring five runs in the first inning and added seven to their count in the second. The Y. M. C. A. boys tallied in the first and scored again in the second.

The game as indicated by the score was decidedly one-sided.

The line-ups:

South Side—Nutting, cf; Uddenberg, ss; Eason, 3b; Hurr, c; Anderson, 2b; Fitzharris, rf; Olson, lf; Hanson, 1b; Whitlock, p; Peterson, 1b.

Y. M. C. A.—J. Fitzharris, 2b; C. Orth, cf; Imgrund, ss; Ringer, c; G. Orth, 1b; Marshall, 3b; Gruenhagen, rf; Hagberg; lf; Erickson, p; Larson.

Umpires—Elling and Erickson.

Watching the Scoreboard

(By United Press)

Yesterday's Hero—Joe Dugan, Yankees' third baseman, whose hitting featured the Yankees' double victory over the Athletics. Dugan hit two home runs, a double and a single in the second game, driving in five runs, the Yankees winning, 9 to 2. Babe Ruth hit his fifteenth and sixteenth homers, accounting for the other four runs. In the first game, Gehrig's homer with two mates on base won for the Yanks, 4 to 2. The Yanks now hold a five and a half game lead over the Athletics.

Red Lucas won his eighth victory of the season, holding the St. Louis Cardinals to six hits, the Reds winning, 2 to 0, and holding their narrow lead in the National league.

With Charley Root pitching steadily, the Chicago Cubs drove out 16 hits and broke their four game losing streak by beating the Pittsburgh Pirates, 10 to 3.

Melvin Ott's home run in the eighth with Roush on base gave the New York Giants a 4 to 3 victory over the Phillies.

The Boston Braves lost their first game under the management of Rogers Hornsby to the Brooklyn Robins, 4 to 1.

The Boston Red Sox beat the Washington Senators, 5 to 0, and went back to fourth place in the American league. Charlie Ruffing held the Senators safe.

Losing to the Cleveland Indians, 8 to 4, the St. Louis Browns dropped to fifth place.

WELLIVER AND BARNES LEAD IN DECATHALON

FIVE EVENTS BEING RUN OFF TODAY AT GREGORY PARK; TEN COMPETE

SECOND EVENT SCHEDULED FOR MONDAY TO DECIDE BEST TRACK MAN

The second series of the decathalon to decide the best all-around track athlete in the Brainerd high school will be run off Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock at Gregory Park.

The first events were being held today at Gregory Park. Barnes and Welliver were in the lead as point getters. Ten athletes were competing today. Others will compete later.

The events Monday will include the 75 yard dash, shot put, running high jump, javelin and half mile.

WALTER LUTZKE GOES TO NEWARK

Indians Send "Rube" to Walter Johnson's Team.

Walter Lutzke, third baseman on the Cleveland baseball team since 1923, has been sold to the Newark club of the International league. The deal was announced by Billy Evans after a conference with Jimmy Sinnott, business manager of the Newark club.

At least seven class AA clubs were after him, but the Indians sent him to Newark in preference to any other place as they were eager to make an alliance with the New Jersey team.

At Newark Lutzke will play for Walter Johnson, the man off whom he seldom made a hit when both were in the American league. Johnson and Paul Block, owner of the Newark club, have lined up a great team for that city and Rube is expected to be one of the mainstays of the outfit.

Lutzke was one of the greatest fielders the American league has seen in years, but never could hit up to major league standards. He came to the Tribe in 1923, after E. S. Barnard had paid Kansas City in the neighborhood of $35,000 for his release. He supplanted Larry Gardner at third for the Tribe and was a regular until the close of the 1927 season. When in the minors, Rube always was a .300 hitter and made many extra base blows.

With the departure of Lutzke the third base job on the Cleveland team goes to Johnny Hodapp. Johnny is not the fielder Rube was, but is a better hitter, much faster and younger. Rube has turned thirty in years and was slowing up each season.

Player's Toe Injured So He Sues Railroad

A baseball player who charged that injury to a toe resulted in his failure to make "the grade" in the National league and his subsequent trade, filed suit in city court at Atlanta seeking $25,000 from a railroad whose employee, he alleged, stepped on his foot.

Grover Hartley, a former catcher for the New York Giants, filed the suit against the Georgia railway, setting forth that in April, 1926, while a passenger on the road in Fulton county, he walked into the vestibule of a pullman barefooted, where a flagman stepped on his right foot, turning and tearing a nail from one of his toes.

This injury so "slowed him down," Hartley claimed, that Manager John McGraw released him and that he had to go to a "less remunerative and desirable' place with Cleveland.

Legs of Ball Players Cause of Much Concern

Trainers in the various big league camps this spring devoted much of their time to the legs of the valuable athletes. In baseball the legs count most. Many a player who can still see the ball to hit it finds that his underpinnings have gone back on him, and he can't run out his hits after he makes them. No player's career ever outlasted his legs. A well-known trainer remarked the other day:

"Players never think of their legs; all they think about is their arms. But what they do not realize is that no arm was ever in shape before the legs. If the legs are still stiff, sore or tender, then the player ought to realize that it's too early to cut loose with the arm."

PYLE CROSS COUNTRY RACE ENDS TODAY

FINISH IS FORECAST, PAYNE LEADING PACK

CLAREMONT, OKLAHOMA YOUTH, ABOUT TO GAIN $25,000 CASH PRIZE

JOHN SALO, CLINCHING HOLD ON SECOND PLACE, $10,000 PRIZE

By JAMES M. POWERS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

Passaic, N. J., May 26. — New York's proud skyline took on the appearance of a dollar sign today so far as one small group of sun browned, bewhiskered and wearied men was concerned.

The same proud skyline, reaching up across the river from the Jersey shore, was wound around in a way that spelled rest for a complete group of 55 men, including the group that saw the dollar sign sticking out of the towering skyscrapers.

For C. C. Pyle's trans-continental derby was just about at an end. This afternoon 55 runners will jog over to Weehawken, ferry across to New York, pace up to Madison Square Garden and there end a trip of more than 3,000 miles.

Many are going to finish just for the glory's sake and to help C. C. Pyle make a great big show in New York. But young curly haired Andy Payne, John Salo and a few others are going to run into Madison Square Garden to claim $48,500 that Pyle promised. He has reassured them they will receive the money, and the runners were confident this morning.

"The runners need not worry about their money," Pyle said. "There have been only a few grievances and they didn't mean much. One complainer was a chap in 47th place, but he wouldn't lose even if the money wasn't available."

That assurance cheered those who will participate in the prizes of this trans-continental jaunt.

"I could have packed Yankee stadium," he mentioned, just to indicate how New York is going to take to this big windup.

This morning he moved his freaks —the sideshow he carried along as a counter attraction to the long distance runners—into New York, so they could be set up at Madison Square Garden. Mud spattered training cars were sent over so the Garden crowd could look at them. When the runners arrive this evening, probably about 8:30 P. M., he will show them to the crowd individually and then send each one off on a 200 lap sprint.

Then, too, Pyle already is looking ahead.

Yesterday John Salo led the pack in their run from Suffern, N. Y. Passaic was Salo's home town and the crowd turned out in great numbers. However, winning the heat merely clinched second place for Salo because Andy Payne holds a 16 hours, 17 minutes and 35 seconds lead, and only a broken leg or utter collapse can beat the Claremore, Okla., youth out of first place.

The way the race likely will end, and the money each of the leaders will receive, follows:

| | |
|---|---|
| 1—Andrey Payne, Claremore, Okla. | $25,000 |
| 2—John Salo, Passaic, N. J. | $10,000 |
| 3—Philip Granville, Hamilton, Ont. | $ 5,000 |
| 4—Mike Joyce, Cleveland | $ 2,500 |
| 5—Giusto Umek, Trieste, Italy | $ 1,000 |
| 6—William Kerr, Minneapolis | $ 1,000 |
| 7—Eddie Gardner, Seattle | $ 1,000 |
| 8—Louis Perella, Albany, N. Y. | $ 1,000 |
| 9—Frank Von Flue, Kerman, Calif. | $ 1,000 |
| 10—John Cronick, Saskatoon, Sask. | $ 1,000 |

JAPAN REPLIES TO AMERICAN ANTI-WAR PACT

Washington, May 26. — (U.P.)— Japan replied tday to the American anti-war treaty proposals, agreeing to participate in negotiations among six powers for such a treaty.

The reply was an acceptance of the American draft. The Japanese pointed out that their rights of self-defense and their commitments under existing international agreements must be protected in any pact they sign, but suggested that these provisions need not be written into the treaty.

Read the Bible

Victor Hugo named the old prophet Isaiah as one of the six greatest literary men of all times. He can still be found in the world's best seller, which is the Bible. Read him now—both for ideas and for style. If you are interested in learning some things about the English language, and haven't a Bible in the house, better buy one. They are cheap.—Grove Patterson, in the Mobile Register.

Time Standards

There are four time standards used in this country, eastern, central, mountain and Pacific. The boundaries between these time zones are irregular lines, that between eastern and central passing through Toledo north through the Canadian border.

CANOE MARATHON RACE IN WINDUP AT MINNEAPOLIS

FINAL LAP BEGAN AT ANOKA AT 9 A. M., LUNCH AT COON CREEK

CANOES EXPECTED TO CROSS FINISH LINE AT 2:30 P. M.

Minneapolis, May 26. — (UP) — Minnesota's Diamond Jubilee celebration will be officially opened today when 22 canoeists who began a marathon race at the headwaters of the Mississippi, two weeks ago finish their race here.

The final lap of the race began from Anoka at 9 A. M. today and allowing a stop for lunch at Coon Creek the canoes should cross the finish line at 2:30 P. M. Fast time is expected to be made in the last leg as the paddlers race for extra prizes.

Ben Tibbetts and Bill Reynolds, Ballclub, with a total elapsed time of 78 hours and 35 minutes, lead their nearest competitors, Jim and Tom Tibbetts, Bemidji, by 41 minutes.

Harry Anderson and Fred Hanson, Mankato, held third place as the morning drive started.

"Forestry Week"

In 1920, the idea of devoting a week annually to an educational campaign in the interest of forests originated in the Pacific Northwest. At first this week was called "Forest Protection week." In 1921, President Harding brought the federal government behind the idea and issued a proclamation. Since that time such a week has been observed each year.

First of Large Tribe

Parson Mason Locke Weems, first biographer of George Washington, was America's first itinerant book agent. A biography of Weems reveals that with a copy of his "Life of Washington" under one arm and tracts on morality under the other he made house-to-house canvasses of the citizens of the young nation.

SOUTH SIDE GO ON HITTING SPREE; GAME CALLED

CHALK UP 12 RUNS IN TWO INNINGS TO "Y'S" TWO; DARKNESS ENDS GAME

ONE-SIDED GAME FAILS TO GO FULL DISTANCE; FIRST TWO INNINGS WERE LONG

Darkness gave the Y. M. C. A. a new lease on the ball game with the South Side last evening when after playing only three innings during which time the S. S. piled up a count of 12 to 2, the game was called.

The South Siders opened the game by scoring five runs in the first inning and added seven to their count in the second. The Y. M. C. A. boys tallied in the first and scored again in the second.

The game as indicated by the score was decidedly one-sided.

The line-ups:

South Side—Nutting, cf; Uddenberg, ss; Eason, 3b; Hurr, c; Anderson, 2b; Fitzharris, rf; Olson, lf; Hanson, 1b; Whitlock, p; Peterson, 1b.

Y. M. C. A.—J. Fitzharris, 2b; C. Orth, cf; Imgrund, ss; Ringer, c; G. Orth, 1b; Marshall, 3b; Gruenhagen, rf; Hagberg; lf; Erickson, p; Larson.

Umpires—Elling and Erickson.

Watching the Scoreboard

(By United Press)

Yesterday's Hero—Joe Dugan, Yankees' third baseman, whose hitting featured the Yankees' double victory over the Athletics. Dugan hit two home runs, a double and a single in the second game, driving in five runs, the Yankees winning, 9 to 2. Babe Ruth hit his fifteenth and sixteenth homers, accounting for the other four runs. In the first game, Gehrig's homer with two mates on base won for the Yanks, 4 to 2. The Yanks now hold a five and a half game lead over the Athletics.

Red Lucas won his eighth victory of the season, holding the St. Louis Cardinals to six hits, the Reds winning, 2 to 0, and holding their narrow lead in the National league.

With Charley Root pitching steadily, the Chicago Cubs drove out 16 hits and broke their four game losing streak by beating the Pittsburgh Pirates, 10 to 3.

Melvin Ott's home run in the eighth with Roush on base gave the New York Giants a 4 to 3 victory over the Phillies.

The Boston Braves lost their first game under the management of Rogers Hornsby to the Brooklyn Robins, 4 to 1.

The Boston Red Sox beat the Washington Senators, 5 to 0, and went back to fourth place in the American league. Charlie Ruffing held the Senators safe.

Losing to the Cleveland Indians, 8 to 4, the St. Louis Browns dropped to fifth place.

With the departure of Lutzke the third base job on the Cleveland team goes to Johnny Hodapp. Johnny is not the fielder Rube was, but is a better hitter, much faster and younger. Rube has turned thirty in years and was slowing up each season.

Player's Toe Injured So He Sues Railroad

A baseball player who charged that injury to a toe resulted in his failure to make "the grade" in the National league and his subsequent trade, filed suit in city court at Atlanta seeking $25,000 from a railroad whose employee, he alleged, stepped on his foot.

Grover Hartley, a former catcher for the New York Giants, filed the suit against the Georgia railway, setting forth that in April, 1926, while a passenger on the road in Fulton county, he walked into the vestibule of a pullman barefooted, where a flagman stepped on his right foot, turning and tearing a nail from one of his toes.

This injury so "slowed him down," Hartley claimed, that Manager John McGraw released him and that he had to go to a "less remunerative and desirable' place with Cleveland.

Legs of Ball Players Cause of Much Concern

Trainers in the various big league camps this spring devoted much of their time to the legs of the valuable athletes. In baseball the legs count most. Many a player who can still see the ball to hit it finds that his underpinnings have gone back on him, and he can't run out his hits after he makes them. No player's career ever outlasted his legs. A well-known trainer remarked the other day:

"Players never think of their legs; all they think about is their arms. But what they do not realize is that no arm was ever in shape before the legs. If the legs are still stiff, sore or tender, then the player ought to realize that it's too early to cut loose with the arm."

Big-Game Preserved

It is estimated that there are 963,000 big-game animals and beaver in the national forests of continental United States and Alaska. Of these 671,050 are deer.
